Husband locked up for knife attack on his wife

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

A VIOLENT drunk has been jailed for more than four years for wounding after attacking his wife with a knife.

Gary Peterson, 40, from Fort Hill, Margate, confronted his estranged wife Samantha at her home in Westgate on Sea on November 23 last year.

A jury at Canterbury Crown Court heard how he was 'consumed with jealousy' when he went to see her.

Peterson was on bail for a previous assault on his wife. He arrived at around 9pm to discuss the relationship. While he was there he grabbed a knife from a kitchen drawer.

He used it to stab Mrs Peterson twice in the chest. At the trial Peterson was acquitted of attempted murder and of causing grievous bodily harm with intent.

Jailing him for a total of four years and six months, Judge Adele Williams QC, said Peterson was 'fuelled by alcohol' and had shown no true remorse for the attack.

DI Chris Carter from Kent Police said: "This was a despicable act of unprovoked violence which could have proved fatal. It has not only left physical injuries but mental scars which have affected the whole family and I am satisfied that this violent and unpredictable man is now behind bars where he cannot be a danger to anyone else."

UNEMPLOYMENT

Action for our young people

THANET Labour Party held a day of action against youth unemployment recently. The party says there has been an increase of more than 100 per cent in those claiming job seeker's allowance in Thanet since January. There are now 5,545 people claiming the benefit in the area.

WILDLIFE

Churchyards for nature

THE Friends of Margate Cemetery have been given a prize for the best wildlife churchyard in the county. The award is part of the God's Acre Project and is part of a national campaign intended to help church managers and communities attract flora and fauna to their churchyards.

LIVE EXPORTS

Public and politicians join forces to debate animal exports

A MEETING was held in Broadstairs on Saturday to oppose the export of live farm animals from Ramsgate to Europe.

Along with members of the public, the event was attended by local MP Laura Sandys, who recently led a debate about the export of live animals in Parliament. Keith Taylor, Green Party MEP and leading animal welfare organisations, the RSPCA and Compassion in World Farming.

The meeting at The Baptist Hall was organised by Thanet District Council's Labour councillor, Ian Driver.

He said: "Virtually everyone we speak to says they are against the live export trade.

"Since the exports began in May there have been 35 shipments, involving more than 40,000 sheep and calves. The condition these animals are forced to endure on long journeys through the UK and Europe is nothing less than barbaric. We must work together to try to stop this sickening trade.

"We are calling on Defra to enforce European animal welfare and transport regulations a lot more robustly than they have done to date."

But Frank Langrish from the National Farmers Union said the trade created valuable increased income for farmers.

He said: "We are very short of outlets and there is a huge demand in Europe for our livestock. The trade is extremely well regulated and the value of the stock so high we would not want the animals to arrive in poor condition. We would not get the money for them."

FLOODING

Sea defences to get a boost

WORK to strengthen Margate's sea defences has begun. The scheme, which will include a new stepped structure from the beach to the promenade, is due to be completed by December 2012. More than 10,000 tonnes of concrete is expected to be used.

ECONOMY

The Open's power fires £77m into our economy after golf extravaganza

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

THE Open in Sandwich this summer contributed a massive £77 million to the county's economy, it was revealed this week.

Independent economic research commissioned by tournament organiser, The Royal and Ancient Golf Club (R&A), found east Kent alone – Canterbury, Thanet, Dover and Shepway – benefitted to the tune of £21.2m, with the county as a whole banking more than £24m.

The £77m included £52.6m of destination marketing benefit, which boosted the profile of the area nationally and internationally, through the week-long event at Royal St George's in July.

Kent County Council leader Paul Carter said having the spotlight on the county would help secure inward investment for the area.

"The Open was the largest major global sports event that Kent has accommodated in recent years," he said.

"Not only did it lead to a golf legacy project involving many hundreds of people in the county trying golf for the first time, but it boosted the profile of the area nationally and internationally, which should help in our efforts to secure inward investment, tourism and jobs for east Kent."

The world famous tournament, which was previously held in Kent in 2003, attracted 180,000 spectators this year with 37,000 travelling on the special high-speed service from London to Sandwich.

Airline Flybe reported that total bookings at Manston airport increased by 70 per cent in July, with a 40 per cent rise in bookings on the company's Edinburgh service.

The tournament was won in style by Ulsterman Darren Clarke, who picked up the Claret Jug on his 20th attempt. He won by three shots and picked up a winner's cheque of £900,000.

The only big name missing from the line-up was Tiger Woods who was forced out due to injury.

Sports minister and Faversham and Mid-Kent MP Hugh Robertson said The Open was one of the jewels in the crown of the sporting calendar, which attracted golf fans from all over the world.

"As a Kent MP, it was good to see it return to Royal St George's this year," he said.

"Hosting the championship gave an economic boost to the county and region, but also to the country as a whole."

Chief executive of The R&A, Peter Dawson, said he was delighted The Open had delivered a significant economic impact to the community.

"In one week, the economic benefit for Kent exceeded £24m and the tourism legacy benefit of almost 300 hours of scenic images of the countryside, viewed globally on television, will pay back in the county for years to come," he said.

The results of the economic impact assessment came just weeks after east Kent was successful in its bid to the Government's Regional Growth Fund, securing £40m to help create new jobs and support businesses in Canterbury, Thanet, Dover and Shepway.

In August, the Sandwich Discovery Park – the former Pfizer site – also secured Enterprise Zone status, offering businesses incentives such as tax breaks and lenient planning rules in a bid to attract investment and new companies.

NEWS IN BRIEF

➔ Call in beheading case

FOREIGN Office chiefs say they will investigate how the murder case of a Chatham woman, brutally beheaded in India earlier this year, collapsed – despite two men pleading guilty.

Surjit Kaur, 67, was killed after going missing in the Punjab region. But criminal proceedings fell apart last month after a key witness withdrew. Members of her family met with minister Jeremy Browne on Wednesday to discuss the case.

➔ KCC in data criticism

KENT County Council has been named one of the worst authorities in the UK for losing sensitive and private data. It was named and shamed in a report published by Big Brother Watch which revealed cases across the UK.

It was however praised for being open and transparent about the losses. KCC said as the biggest authority in England it was no surprise it came out top. It added it had a robust system in place to log and investigate all incidents.

➔ Emaciated dog found

A STARVING dog, just half its normal body weight, has been found dumped in the street.

Now the RSPCA is appealing for information on how the male lurcher it's named Reuben was discovered abandoned and so thin its bones had broken through its skin in Church Road, Hartley.

The animal is now being cared for at the RSPCA Leybourne centre near West Malling. Centre manager Christine Dooley said: "This is the thinnest dog I've ever seen."

It is appealing for donations to help fund £1,000 of treatment.

TRANSPORT

Good news at last, as Government puts brakes on Dartford toll rises

PLANS for a controversial double increase in charges at the Dartford Crossing have been abandoned by the Government.

While it is not yet known whether the heavily criticised proposal will be ditched altogether, roads minister Mike Penning confirmed the planned hike in toll charges expected this month and in April next year will not go ahead.

Motorists currently pay £1.50 for a single trip through the crossing, but plans were to push this up to £2 now and £2.50 next April.

The move was fiercely criticised by drivers' groups and local politicians, with 11 MPs, including Tory Dartford representative Gareth Johnson, writing to the Government demanding the planned toll increases be scrapped.

In an unexpected statement this week, Mr Penning announced that charges would remain the same until further consideration.

"The Dartford Crossing is a vital piece of transport infrastructure that has brought huge economic benefits," he said.

"The large number of responses to our consultation into increasing charges shows just how important the crossing is for local people and road users.

"We have listened to concerns about introducing increases before Christmas and the Olympics and I can confirm that the charges will not rise this month and in April next year as originally planned.

"A final decision on timings and a full response to the consultation will be announced in due course, once we have had more time to fully consider all the important issues raised by the 1,300 plus responses.

He added: "This does not change the fact that many more motorists want to use the crossing than it was designed for – leading to frequent lengthy delays and damage to the economy – and action is needed.

"That is why we announced in last year's spending review that we intend to increase charges.

"The increase in revenue this will bring allows us to prioritise improvements which will benefit the millions of crossing users, including introducing free flow charging and exploring provision of new additional crossing capacity."

Leader of Kent County Council, Paul Carter, said: "I welcome the news, however, it is still vital the Department for Transport introduces free flow tolling as soon as possible.

"Also, that the DoT continues to look at delivering additional crossing capacity of the Thames and makes a firmer commitment to when this will happen."

BUSINESS

TV chef's flagship diner in peril as money woes put survival on the menu

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

TOP Tunbridge Wells restaurant Thackeray's has been forced to take major steps to balance its books after "adverse trading pressures" led it to enter into a new agreement with creditors, to prevent it from collapse.

The Michelin star-winning venue, which overlooks the Common and was the former home of 19th century novelist William Makepeace Thackeray, is co-owned by celebrity chef Richard Phillips, who also runs a string of venues across the county.

Now Thackeray's has entered into what is known as a Company Voluntary Agreement (CVA).

A spokesman for the company said it was required to allow the restaurant to "continue to trade in its present form".

A CVA allows a limited company experiencing cash flow problems to reorganise their debts to creditors and repay them either in part or in full over an extended period.

It is normally a step taken to avoid having to go into administration and buy time to turn the business around.

A spokesman for the company said: "Thackerays (Limited) has entered into a CVA as the most effective process to allow the restaurant to continue to trade in its present form and maintain its commitment to customer quality and service.

"This course of action is necessary due to adverse trading pressures over the past 18 months. These mounting pressures have required the business to operate on reduced credit terms with a number of large suppliers which has negatively impacted on the cash flow position of the business.

"Entering into the CVA allows the business to consolidate its creditors' book and will provide a period of payment deferral to ease cash flow pressure. This action is protecting the business and allows it to function as normal to ensure the highest levels of service to the restaurant's patrons.

"The management of the company is committed to Thackeray's restaurant and will endeavour to trade the business to a positive position in the near term."

The spokesman said none of Mr Phillips' other restaurants were affected by the situation.

Mr Phillips, who lives near Maidstone, took over the restaurant in Tunbridge Wells more than

The cook, who has appeared on TV shows such as Ready Steady Cook and Saturday Kitchen, began his career at the Savoy Hotel in London. He then worked at La Gavroche with the Roux Brothers before becoming head chef for Marco Pierre White at the Criterion.

He also owns the Hengist in Aylesford, which he opened in 2004. Richard Phillips at Chapel Down in Tenterden, opened at the vineyard near the town in 2008, and the Pearson's Arms gastro pub in Whitstable, which he took over last year.

A previous Michelin star winner, Thackeray's has also held three AA rosettes and was named the best gourmet restaurant in Kent in 2009.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Island murder probe

A MURDER investigation has been launched into the death of former Marine and Sheppey school teacher Carl Davies after he was found dead on the island of Reunion in the Indian Ocean.

His family had accused local police of mishandling the case after initially claiming he fell to his death.

A second post mortem will take place this week amid speculation he was beaten and sexually assaulted.

Bomb hoax charge

A 49-YEAR-OLD woman from Tunbridge Wells has been charged with falsely claiming a bomb was set to go off.

The latest incident occurred on Tuesday and was directed toward the American Embassy. Jessica Lang from Stephen's Road in the town, was arrested the following day and charged with communicating false information and a separate count of shoplifting. She was bailed until December 6.

Wind farm cash boost

AN offshore wind farm off the coast of Thanet is to benefit from a £150 million funding boost from the European Investment Bank in a bid to help the UK hit renewable energy targets.

The 100-turbine wind farm, the largest of its kind in the world, aims to help the UK generate 15 per cent of its energy from renewable sources by 2020. The cash will be presented once a series of assessments are completed.

AVIATION

FLYING IN THE FACE: An artist's impression of the airport hub put forward by Lord Foster

Fears grow as airport plans sprout wings in the corridors of power

GOVERNMENT chiefs appear to be warming to the idea of a major new airport hub to be built in the Thames Estuary as critics of the proposals look to galvanise their opposition for what seems destined to be a long and messy fight.

Just a week after the minister of aviation wrote to Rochester and Strood MP Mark Reckless stating the Government had "no plans" for a new airport in or around Kent, speculation is spreading the ideas may be gaining support in the corridors of power.

Chancellor George Osborne is reportedly prepared to listen to the idea, with Steve Hilton, Downing Street's influential head of strategy, also keen to explore the options.

In addition, London Mayor Boris Johnson launched a new report on the economic benefits of building a new site on reclaimed land in the estuary – dubbed Boris Island.

He claims it would allow the UK to access billions of pounds of foreign investment.

His idea has recently been joined by Lord Foster's ambitious scheme for a huge airport hub on the Isle of Grain.

But opposition in Kent remains high. A new online petition has been launched by Medway Council to object to the plans. The website is backed by Kent County Council and the RSPB. It invites the people of Kent to write a letter to the Mayor of London demanding it be stopped.

The leader of Medway Council, Rodney Chambers, said: "The Thames Estuary airport would require huge unsightly highways to be built linking the airport to the motorway network turning parts of Medway and Kent into a concrete jungle. This scheme does not add up. It cannot be allowed to progress further."

KOS CAMPAIGN

'Heating or eating' - the choice many OAPs face due to rising fuel costs

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

VULNERABLE elderly people are being forced to turn off their heating and suffer bitterly cold temperatures in their homes due to the rising cost of fuel.

And despite being given the £200 winter fuel payment – handed tax-free by government to every household with someone aged 60 or over living there – some admitted it only covered a fraction of their winter heating bills.

But they continue to suffer in silence, with many slipping into isolation as they wrap themselves up at home in a bid to try and keep warm.

Roger Cusdin, chairman of the Tunbridge Wells-based Young at Heart, a club providing a social hub for elderly people, said he sees first hand the struggles faced by older people living on the breadline.

"Eighty per cent of our members live by themselves, and I'm sure some of them have to make a choice between heating and eating due to rising fuel costs," he said.

"The winter fuel payment is a lifeline to many, but it doesn't always go far enough. There are many who are much worse off than others."

Mr Cusdin gave his support to the Archant KOS Media-backed Surviving Winter appeal, run by Kent Community Foundation (KCF), which appeals for better-off pensioners who do not need the £200 to donate some or all of the payment to the neediest in their communities.

KCF's Annette Fettes stressed the campaign was not suggesting all pensioners give up the payment, but asks those who really do not need the money to "recycle" it by helping others.

Pauline Scrace from Tunbridge Wells, suffers from the bone disease osteoporosis and, despite the cold weather making her symptoms worse, has to turn her heating off due to rising bills.

The 61-year-old, who cares for her two grandsons, aged 12 and 17, said winter was a difficult time.

"I get my electricity and gas bills at the same time and although the £200 winter fuel payment helps, it doesn't cover it," she said.

"I really struggle in the winter. I have my heating on from about 5-9pm. I try and cut down my food bills so I can keep the heating on for longer."

Asked what she thought of the Surviving Winter campaign, she said: "For people that are really well-off it wouldn't hurt to donate some of the £200, although I wouldn't want to take it from anyone who needed it."

"I know there are people worse off than me."

West Kent resident Pat Long, 70, said she was finding the winters more difficult.

"I have my heating on at certain times of the day, but I put on my woollies and dressing gown over the top to try and keep warm," she said.

"I don't cope well in the winter; I find it depressing and it's so dark and cold and it's hard always trying to keep warm. I have to be so careful with how much hot water I use and how long I have the heating on for."

Kent Community Foundation said its aim is for every penny donated to go to the needy, with administrative costs covered by the Government through Gift Aid donations.

You can donate by cheque. Please remember to Gift Aid your donation using the form below, this will add 25 per cent to its value.

Rail passengers face hurdle of Olympic Games timetable

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

TRAIN operator Southeastern says it will not give cash compensation to rail passengers whose journeys will be affected by next year's London Olympic Games.

The event may be the biggest sports event this country has seen years, but for Kent's rail users it will mean delays and disruption.

Southeastern this week announced its timetable for the two-week period next summer, and the hardest hit passengers will be those who use the high-speed service to London.

The Javelin trains, which normally run to Dover, Folkestone, Canterbury, Ramsgate and Margate, will be used to shuttle sports fans between St Pancras in north London and Ebbsfleet – with a stop in the middle at the Olympic stadium in Stratford.

The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) wants Southeastern to run eight trains per hour along the high-speed line between St Pancras and Ebbsfleet. Originally all the trains would have terminated at Ebbsfleet, but Southeastern has persuaded the authority to allow two of the trains to continue on to Ashford and one to continue on to Faversham, each hour.

Extra late-night services have also been scheduled for those stations. Passengers further down the line will have to use mainline trains to Ashford and Faversham and change if they want to continue using the fast connection.

ODA director of transport Hugh Sumner described the rail service as being "significantly enhanced" during the Olympics.

This may be true for those living in the London area, but for Kent passengers there will inevitably be more crowded trains and longer journeys.

The train operator has said it will compensate high-speed passengers from the stations affected during the Olympics.

The company defended the decision to give compensation in vouchers rather than cash. The vouchers will be given to holders of monthly and longer period high-speed tickets.

A spokesman said: "We appreciate for some passengers using high speed it will not be a through service, but because we have provided a service for passengers who need to travel, even though it may take longer, we have opted to give the compensation in vouchers rather than cash. Passengers can still get refunds for tickets not used."

"We will be contacting everyone on our list before Christmas and in May."

Southeastern says the mainline service will be largely unaffected during the Games, which run from July 27 to August 12.

The timetable is based on the prediction that there will be 10 per cent fewer passengers using rail services at that time of year because of people being on holiday.

The news comes after it was revealed there would be disruption to rail services in Kent over Christmas while Network Rail installed new signalling on the tracks.

Dry homes feel warmer

Holland Damp Proofing dries out your home and is guaranteed to work

Your damp proofing questions answered

Holland Damp Proofing managing director Evert De Graaf answers your questions about damp and his unique system to treat it.

What does damp look and feel like?

The tell-tale signs of damp are fungus and mould growth, a strong musty smell, peeling wallpaper and rotting carpets. Autumn weather will add to this, leaving your property feeling colder and probably costing you more to run. Addressing your damp problems now will lead to drier walls, which should help lower your energy bills, and make your home feel more comfortable.

How does your system work?

The system involves a series of small damp-regulating bricks which fit into specially prepared niches in the external walls of your home, close to the ground, at regular intervals. These bricks are installed from the outside by our trained engineers. Once in place, they allow air to flow into the brick chambers and out again – circulating airflow through the inside of the wall which evaporates the moisture, drying out the wall and allowing it to breathe.

What properties is it suitable for?

Virtually all types – it is suitable for use on cavity, solid and brick walls. It is particularly good for stone walls. It can also be used on most properties of any shape and size, from mansions to maisonettes – we've even installed our system in a windmill!

Is it a big job to have it installed?

No, because we work from the outside, the inside of your house won't be turned into a building site and with our trained engineers doing the installation, it usually only takes one to two days.

Why do you say it is eco-friendly?

It uses airflow to dry out walls rather than toxic chemicals, which are used in 'traditional' damp proofing systems. It is also a permanent solution, guaranteed for 20 years, so it won't need replacing.

What are the advantages of using this system over more traditional chemical damp proofing?

Our system has the advantage of being installed from the outside, so there is no mess inside and no costly redecorating afterwards.

No mess, no problem

Holland Damp Proofing has been installing in UK homes for the past 12 years... Protecting thousands of properties across the country with fantastic results. But don't just take our word for it, here's what Holland Damp Proofing customers have to say:

"When you come across a company that has such high standards you feel obliged to recommend to other people. Many thanks indeed."

Mrs C, Croydon

"The damp-proof system has ensured we have stayed dry and warm, and we know it's going to stay like that!"

Mrs F, Essex

"So far there is a great improvement."

Mrs H, Sussex

"Very good. I would recommend to all my family and friends. I was given good advice by Mr De Graaf on ventilation of our property, which has helped a lot. Brilliant service."

CRIME

Police push new phone number – 101 – for all non-emergency calls

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A NEW non-emergency police number – 101 – has been launched by Kent Police in a bid to ease pressure on the 999 system.

People wishing to report a crime or contact their neighbourhood officer can now dial 101, which the force says will make it easier to report a crime or incident, such as a stolen car, traffic incident or damage to property.

Residents can also call the number to pass on information about crime and disorder in their area, such as suspected drug dealing or anti-social behaviour.

A Kent Police spokeswoman said as well as making the process of reporting a crime easier, it is hoped to reduce pressure on the emergency 999 system, allowing officers to prioritise the most urgent calls for help.

GOT YOUR NUMBER: 101 will put you through to the nearest police station to your location

"People will get through to their local police station, but if they want to speak to police somewhere else – let's say they want to report a crime in another area – there will be options given to them over the phone to do that," she said.

"If people call the old 01622 690690 number they will be advised to call 101 in future; we need to make people aware of the new way to contact their local neighbourhood officer with non-urgent issues."

Mobile phone signals and area codes determine which force callers are directed to.

If someone is calling from within one mile of a force boundary they will be given options of nearby police forces to choose from.

All calls are dealt with by call handlers in the force control room in Maidstone.

The spokeswoman added: "People should continue to call 999 in an emergency, such as when a crime is in progress, when someone suspected of a crime is nearby, when there is danger to life, or when violence is being used or threatened."

People who are deaf or speech impaired can still text 'police' and their message to 60066.

Women-only scheme gives offenders escape route from life of crime

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

FEMALE offenders who are trapped in a cycle of crime have been thrown a lifeline through a new women-only hub aimed at stopping reoffending.

Located in Medway, the Prospects programme is run by Kent Probation and provides a safer and more secure environment for women to change their criminal behaviour.

Kent Probation intentionally located it away from the Probation Office in Chatham, where some women admitted to feeling stigmatised and uneasy when faced with male offenders.

Local delivery director Maurice O'Reilly told

LIFELINE: Prospects works to stop reoffending

Archant KOS Media that women were often punished more severely than men by the criminal justice system, despite them being more likely to have been victims of domestic or sexual violence themselves, leading them to commit crime.

"Historically it was men who offended, whereas the woman's role was to be at home. It was seen as even more unacceptable for a woman to offend," he said.

"They are more disadvantaged in the criminal justice system. They may have been in an abusive relationship which has led to the crime but this isn't always addressed.

"What I wanted to look at in Medway and across north Kent was how we could empower women to change their lives and reduce reoffending through the criminal justice system."

Prospects, which is for women on community orders or licences, was launched in April involving 12 offenders. Each week they attend a group session where they are also given access to services such as accommodation, counselling, employment and training.

The courts can sentence a person to attend or it can be part of a woman's probation supervision.

Of the 12 women, some of whom were persistent offenders, none have reoffended and those who previously frequently missed meetings with their probation officer have attended every week.

The scheme was designed by Allison Thompson and Julie Tremain from the probation service.

Mrs Thompson said: "We came up with a structure for the sessions, but once we started we realised we couldn't be so structured.

"Instead we decided to take a more responsive approach so dealing with issues that came up in the sessions by the women."

Mrs Tremain said: "Prospects was actually designed with help from the women attending. They helped shape the programme and even came up with the name."

Sue, one of the women using the service, said she would have reoffended had it not been for her involvement with Prospects.

"It's turned my life around. I can work through my problems and the women all help one another - we've kind of taken over the group," she said.

"If this had been there before I wouldn't have reoffended. It's helped me so much that I want to shout it from the rooftops."

Rachel also uses the service.

"Prospects has changed my life. There is so much respect between the members and I have more confidence now."

BUSINESS

Growth key to firms winning share of £40m fund

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

BUSINESS leaders have learned how they can benefit from a slice of the county's £40 million share of cash designed to kick start economic growth.

It comes just weeks after Government approved the multi-million pound boost for the area, by agreeing to give £40m of the national £1 billion Regional Growth Fund to Expansion East Kent, a new grant support programme for businesses, led by Kent County Council.

County Hall chiefs and MPs officially launched the scheme to business owners at Hornby Hobbies in Margate.

KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter said the programme aimed to attract as many as 500 new businesses and create up to 5,000 jobs across Thanet, Dover, Shepway and Canterbury.

But he stressed that supporting the right companies was crucial in making sure east Kent saw the desired growth.

"The key criteria is growth of existing business or new firms coming in. They need to demonstrate job creation and good value," he said.

"These grants are not for supporting firms in difficulty; they will go to companies that have a growth agenda."

Springboard grants of up to £25,000 for start-ups and small businesses with less than 10 employees are available to applicants, as well as larger grants for investment and growth, worth up to £2.5m.

These are expected to be available from spring 2012.

Some £3.5m in business critical infrastructure grants will also be spent on transport links, with hopes for a new Manston Parkway station to service the airport, and high-speed rail enhancement on the Ashford to Ramsgate route.

KCC cabinet member for regeneration and economic development, Cllr Kevin Lynes, said there were still a number of "hoops" to go through with the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, but the council wanted to cut bureaucracy and move forward.

"We've had this successful bid and we've got to make sure the money comes through as quickly as possible," he said.

Expansion East Kent is led by KCC with the support of district councils, MPs and the Sandwich Task Force, which was set up in the wake of Pfizer's announcement it would be pulling out of the area, leaving 2,400 jobs at risk.

While 650 jobs have since been retained at the site, some 700 posts have already gone, with a further 800 to go by the end of next year.

Following the drug giant's shock announcement in February, the site has been given Enterprise Zone status, offering businesses that move to the Pfizer site – now the Sandwich Discovery Park – incentives including tax breaks and lenient planning rules.

Tory MP for South Thanet Laura Sandys said the regional growth fund bid, combined with Enterprise Zone status, showed the area was a priority. "Things are changing and we have the Government's support," she said. "We shouldn't consider ourselves as being at the end of the line – we're being put at the front of the queue."

"It's now about raising the game for the area. East Kent is very much open for business."

"We're not looking to displace jobs; we're looking for new business, national companies and expanding firms."

Grants would be given for a specific project and matching investment would be required from the business. Expansion East Kent will pay for a proportion of total project costs.

For more information about the grants visit www.kent.gov.uk/businessgrants.

MEDIA

PR success as health trust's offerings win a trio of national awards

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

NHS Kent and Medway's communications team has scored a hat-trick by scooping three awards at a national competition.

The east Kent team, which is based at Brook House in Whitstable, was shortlisted in three categories at the Chartered Institute of Public Relations awards – best magazine, best not-for-profit campaign and best use of design and photography.

For a second year in a row, the team scooped the best magazine award for Your Health, which is published by Archant KOS Media.

The title aims to improve the health and wellbeing of people living in east Kent and features real life patient stories.

Judges noted its "impressive results and testimonials from readers" and said the six bi-monthly issues were "meeting objectives within a tight budget".

WINNERS: Julia Rogers, Samuel Jackson and Jo Treharne with their awards

Talkin' 'Bout Your Generation – a campaign aimed to raise awareness of bowel cancer in the over 50s – also bowled over the judges, winning gold for best use of design and photography and silver for best not-for-profit campaign.

Associate director of communications and engagement at east Kent NHS, Glynis Alexander, said: "We are always striving to find fresh and engaging ways to keep our patients and public informed of the latest innovations in the NHS as well as give them top tips on how to improve their health and wellbeing and spot key symptoms of disease."

"Your Health magazine and our bowel cancer awareness campaign are great examples of this – and in these cases the judges really seemed to appreciate how our creative approaches are achieving results."

"These awards are a tribute to all involved in these projects, especially Julia Rogers, Sam Jackson and Jo Treharne who have led them."

Surf school riding high after tourism award nomination

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

A SURF school in Thanet has been named as one of the best sports tourism facilities in the South East.

Joss Bay Surf School in Thanet is riding on the crest of a wave after making the shortlist for the Beautiful South Awards for Excellence.

The winners of the tourism gongs are announced on December 1.

Other Kent attractions hoping to win their categories include Livingstone Lodge at Port Lympne Wild Animal Park (best tourism experience); Kent Conference Bureau (business tourism); Shepherd Neame Visitor Centre (flavour of the South East); Historic Dockyard Chatham (large visitor attraction of the year); Thanet Visitor Information Centre Team (outstanding customer service); Kent Cycle Hire (sports tourism); and Thanet Visitor Information Centre – Margate, Broadstairs and Ramsgate, and Towncentric, Gravesend Visitor Centre (tourism information service of the year).

SURF'S UP: Tourism appeal

Joss Bay Surf School owner and instructor Dave Melmoth said: "To be in the final we had to be highly commended or win a gold or silver award in our category."

"It is great for us because we are alongside some other massive organisations such as Ascot Racecourse and Chatham Dockyard."

"For a small surf school we are punching above our weight."

Melmoth began the school 14 years ago as something to do during the summer months.

He said: "We are the only surf school in our area and what we provide for our customers we do really well."

"We are recognised nationally and we do a lot of disability surfing as well. We run mobile courses and teach water safety."

"We were the first surf school in the whole country to get a Club Mark award which recognises the level of our professionalism within the industry."

Mr Melmoth said surfing in the county actually dates back to the 1960s.

He said: "Since then it has massively grown. When I started teaching I did about 100 lessons – this year we did 2,500."

He said although Thanet was not as well known for surfing as other areas in the country, such as Cornwall, in the right conditions it could produce good waves for the sport.

The school now employs three instructors and other support staff.

Mr Melmoth said: "It's nice to be recognised for what you do and if we do well we will also be supported by the award with a lot of PR and media support."

Michael McIntyre to perform one-off show

TOP comic Michael McIntyre may be more used to performing enormous venues such as the O2 Arena but this weekend he will thrill the audience in the more intimate surroundings for the Hazlitt Art Centre.

The star and judge of Britain's Got Talent, will be performing at the Maidstone venue for one night on Saturday to try out new material on an audience.

He is no stranger to the venue, however, having played there back in November 2007, just before his career went into orbit and he became a household name.

Tickets sold out within a few hours of going on sale.

TRANSPORT

Motorway markings to cut accident rates

ROAD markings are to be painted on a busy section of the M2 in a bid to make the road safer and cut down on accidents.

Work by the Highways Agency started this week to install new chevron shaped road markings on a 3.75 mile section of the coastbound M2 between junction 5 near Sittingbourne and junction 6 at Faversham.

New roadside signs will remind drivers to keep two chevrons apart. The work is expected to take three weeks to complete.

Similar schemes have been used elsewhere in the UK since the early 1990s and evidence has shown that in the right locations they can help cut accidents by up to 56 per cent.

CRIME

'Dangerous and violent' ex-soldier locked up for stabbing wife to death

A FORMER soldier has been jailed indefinitely for stabbing his wife to death in Broadstairs.

Gary Walker, 42, appeared at Canterbury Crown Court on Monday, November 21, for sentencing after previously admitting the manslaughter, on grounds of diminished responsibility, of his wife Natalie Walker.

The court heard how Mrs Walker, 34, who had left Walker because of his violent behaviour towards her, visited him at the home they had shared in Grant Close on March 5.

During the visit, Walker became angry, grabbed a kitchen knife and stabbed her repeatedly. Mrs Walker was taken to hospital in Margate but died from her injuries.

Imposing an indefinite sentence on Walker, Judge Adele Williams, said on Monday that Walker was a "dangerous and violent" offender who would serve at least six years before being considered for parole.

Det Insp Trevor Fleming, from the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate, said: "The devastation caused to this very close family by the loss of a loving mother, daughter and sister is something they will live with for years to come."

"No sentence will go any way to healing the hurt this vicious attack has caused but I am satisfied that a violent and unpredictable man has been put behind bars where he can no longer be a danger or threat to them."

HEALTH CARE

Painkiller prescriptions costing the NHS millions

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

HEALTH trusts in Kent spent more than £16 million on painkiller prescriptions last year.

Research also found that some doctors spent NHS money prescribing over-the-counter painkillers and flu medication.

The average spending on prescribed painkillers nationwide per head for 2010-11 was £8.80. While NHS West Kent and NHS Medway were around average with £8.32 and £8.85 respectively, NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent saw a significantly higher amount spent with £11.25 per head.

Associate director for medicines management for NHS Kent and Medway, Alison Iscott, said the trust was aware that spending on painkilling prescriptions in east Kent was higher than some other primary care trusts.

"Analgesic prescribing is one of the biggest growth areas in east Kent and we are working

DRUGS: As well as painkillers, Lemsip and Alka Seltzer XS have also been prescribed hard with local GP practices to tackle this by ensuring patients are on the most appropriate medication for them," she said.

"We have high levels of deprivation in Thanet and Swale and deprivation is often linked to a higher use of painkillers and heightened sense of pain."

In total last year, NHS Medway spent £2,273,063; West Kent £5,698,397; and Eastern and Coastal Kent £8,349,796.

The highest spenders in the country coughed up around £15 per head and the lowest £3.26.

The researchers looked at the correlation between deprivation, age and painkiller spending. They found in the South East there was a strong correlation between painkiller spending and age.

Judy Aldred, managing director of data analysis firm SSentif, which led the study, said spending on painkillers was increasing steadily.

"At the moment the responsibility for the prescribing budget lies with PCTs but this is about to change," she said. "GPs are being given greater responsibility, including the management of prescribing budgets."

"Although the figures were low, it was concerning to see products such as Lemsip and even Alka Seltzer XS, offered on prescription. When GPs take responsibility for prescribing costs it will be interesting to see if this continues."

A spokesman for the Department of Health said it was important that those living with pain should be able to obtain relief, adding: "However, the decision to prescribe must be clinically based on the assessment of the patient's needs."

CRIME

Links between spate of ATM smash and grabs investigated

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

A RECENT spate of crimes involving cash machines being snatched from their mountings has led police to investigate whether Kent is being targeted by criminal gangs.

There have been three incidents, two involving heavy plant machinery being stolen from nearby building sites and used to grab the machines, and one incident when a 4x4 was used to smash a machine in the wall of a Co-op.

The first raid took place in Ashford on November 16 when a digger was used to take a freestanding cash machine from the car park of a Waitrose supermarket by the A28.

The stolen cash dispenser was taken in the early hours of the morning and later found empty at the site of a car fire in nearby Pluckley.

Three days later thieves attempted to steal a cash machine from the NatWest Bank in Snodland High Street at around

FIRST RAID: The digger used in the smash and grab at Ashford

3.30am. The gang were disturbed by police and fled, with a JCB digger still holding the machine next to the damaged wall of the bank.

Two vehicles, a dark transit-style flatbed lorry and a metallic-coloured Mercedes car, were in the area at the time.

And then on Tuesday thieves stole a cash machine from the Co-op store in Newington near Sittingbourne. It was later found abandoned in a field close to the A2. Witnesses say the 4x4 was used to smash the shopfront and then drag the machine away using a chain.

The gang had cut down trees into the road at either end of the village high street to make it more difficult for police to get to the criminals when the alarm was raised.

Two vehicles were recovered – a white Daihatsu Fourtrak and a white Hylux – and three men were later arrested.

Assistant Chief Constable Gary Beutridge, head of the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate, said: "Each one of these incidents includes highly unusual and individual circumstances. However, we do always keep an open mind and will be exploring any apparent linking factors."

"We have had three reported incidents in a short space of time but I would like to reassure people that these are generally infrequent occurrences."

The British Security Industry Association is warning building contractors and plant hire firms to make sure their machinery is properly secured.

If you have any information, call police on 01622 652494 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

HERITAGE

Dreamland restoration bid wins £3m Lottery bonanza

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

PLANS to transform the old Dreamland site in Margate into a major tourist attraction have taken a giant stride forward thanks to a £3 million Heritage Lottery grant.

The cash awarded to the Dreamland Trust means plans to create an amusement park based on historic rides are closer to happening.

The figure adds to the £3.7m already given by the Department of Culture, Media and Sport, as part of its Sea Change funding, and £4m given by Thanet council.

Nick Laister, chairman of the Dreamland Trust, said: "This puts in place all the funding we now need to enable us to reopen Dreamland Margate and at the same time secure the future of its three remarkable listed structures, the Scenic Railway roller coaster, Dreamland Cinema, and George Sanger's Menagerie cages."

The grant means the first phase of the project can go ahead. A new station will be built on the Scenic Railway which was damaged by fire in 2008, and there will be refurbishment works to the cinema at the park's entrance.

The Victorian exotic animal cages will also be restored at the park, which can date its history back to 1860s.

Stuart McLeod, head of the Heritage Lottery Fund for the South East, said: "This project has huge potential to entertain, intrigue, and delight. As Margate's answer to an early Disneyland, we're delighted to award this investment."

The revival of Dreamland, which closed in 2006, is a major component of Margate's regeneration plans. The trust estimates it will attract around 350,000 visits every year. The plans also include various antique amusement rides and a dedicated learning centre.

However the money will not be handed over until a compulsory purchase order (CPO) served by Thanet council on the site's owner the Margate Town Centre Regeneration Company, is confirmed next year.

Conservative leader of Thanet District Council, Cllr Bob Bayford, said: "We're delighted with this news, especially as it completes the funding needed for the first stage of the project. We have been working hard with the Dreamland Trust to bring it back into use."

"This year is turning out to be a major milestone for Margate's regeneration, with the opening of Turner Contemporary. Our next job is to get the CPO confirmed, so Margate can be home to a world first that will attract thousands more to the town."

Cllr Clive Hart, Thanet Labour leader, said: "The Dreamland site has stood empty for far too long and as someone born, bred and living in the area, I know how the closure of Dreamland has blighted the town."

The second phase of the project will be the restoration of the cinema, which still needs to find funding.

A public enquiry into the CPO will be heard in January.

EMPIRE: These Roman remains in Richborough could help prove the invaders first arrived in Thanet

Roman invading force that landed in Thanet

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

A NEW book takes a look at how Kent's past is intertwined with the greatest empire of the ancient world.

To Rule Britannia, by John Waite, considers the successful invasion of Britain by the Roman emperor Claudius in AD43.

The author said: "There were previous attempts by Julius Caesar but he never made it much past the beaches."

Waite argues the Romans would have most likely landed at these beaches of Thanet, as opposed to other coastal areas in southern Britain.

He said: "In recent years a theory that the Romans landed in Chichester has come to prominence.

"This is because some historians believe there are good political and economic reasons why they would have chosen there, but there is a lot of archaeological evidence to show that Richborough was the original landing site."

Waite has taken a practical look of why an invading army would have chosen Thanet as opposed to the south coast.

He said: "This was a massive military operation. It was the Romans' D-Day."

"If you are going to plan an invasion like that you have to take into account all the military considerations they would have looked at. You need to look at the strategic angles and the logistical angles and that is what I have done with this book."

INVASION FORCE: The new book by author John Waite

Waite has looked at accounts about the campaign by Tacitus, a Roman senator and historian from the time of the invasion.

He has also taken into account factors such as food and military supply lines.

He argues that the later Claudian invasion would have learned from the mistakes of Julius Caesar.

Waite said: "Some people say Julius' earlier landing may have been at Walmer or Deal, but I feel it was further north towards Sandwich."

"The Walmer and Deal beaches are a very difficult place to land. You would have difficulty dragging a big Roman cargo ship up that shingle."

The Romans' first victories on the Claudian invasion were over ancient tribes in Essex.

Waite argues an initial landing in Kent would have made these campaigns easier.

He said: "If you land in Sussex it is a longer march and you would have had to have travelled through a lot of forest."

"In order to supply troops with food the Roman's would have needed to have kept the march as short as possible."

"Thanet would have been much better. The island could have acted as bridgehead and you have the rivers of the Thames and Medway to help keep your troops supplied by boat."

The author also believes a great arch that was built in Richborough showed the location had great significance for the Romans.

He said: "They did throw up victory arches in places. There is no sign of anything like that in Chichester."

"Richborough also has double defence lines. Why would those have been created there if it wasn't to protect a Roman invasion force?"

"I think it was the gateway into Britain as far as the Roman's were concerned."

To Rule Britannia, The Claudian Invasion of Britain AD43, is published by The History Press.

OPINION

They will not be forgotten

David Foley explains the drive for £15 million to create the National War Memorial at Dover before the centenary of the outbreak of World War One

IT is an image brimming with emotion and impact.

A grieving man squeezing his eyes as he rests a sorrowful head on a wall of names.

He is a father, brother or other close relative of a soldier who fell doing his duty, and he is taking a chance to reach out to the memory of the dead family member.

This moving moment was captured at the Vietnam War Memorial, one of several such national monuments to America's fallen. That haunting image also forms part of a film (www.nationalwarmemorial.co.uk/documentary.php) to mark a new charitable campaign to ensure the UK corrects a shameful omission and builds a memorial to those who died fighting for their country in the two world wars.

Yes, we honour our war dead in the build up to Remembrance Sunday, culminating in that poignant ceremony at the Cenotaph in London.

And there is, of course, the National Memorial Arboretum in Staffordshire naming those who have given their lives since World War Two. But where is the monument to the names of a staggering 1.7 million British and Commonwealth servicemen and women who fell in the world wars – the most dreadful conflicts of the last century?

If we are to avoid a repetition of so many fatalities and so much human grief, we must surely pay our respects to those who paid the heaviest price possible to teach us.

And where better to site the proposed National War Memorial than Dover, the frontline town in the nation's frontline county in both wars?

One of the last acts of the celebrated military historian Richard Holmes, who died in April, was to express his unwavering support for the memorial plan: "During the First World War the citizens of Dover would have been able to hear the distant rumble of the guns in France, and during the second the town was within artillery range of that coast."

"Many of the troops going to and from the continent would have used Dover Harbour, itself dominated by that great castle with all the symbolism of earlier wars."

Close to Dover Castle is the less visible, but no less impressive Victorian fortification of the Western Heights, badly in need of preservation and – more importantly – of a real objective to stimulate that preservation.

Which makes them the ideal backdrop for the site of the memorial: they need a new purpose and will provide the perfect home for a permanent, reminder of the cost of our freedom and democratic system.

The design by Craft:Pegg Architects comprises 12 white granite walls representing each year of conflict and bearing all 1.7 million names of the war dead, with no deference to rank or nationality.

In welcoming the thousands of visitors expected, we aim to promote research and provide links to the fallen; as Ian Hislop wrote to us, "so their names may remain 'Not Forgotten'".

The steering committee of a dozen civilian and military professionals have volunteered to make every possible effort to complete the project in time for the centenary of World War One's outbreak – August 4, 2014. We are mobilised to collect £15 million and we will be asking for support from government, public funds and any UK or Commonwealth citizens with a family member involved.

KOS COMMENT

Optimistic figures for policing are too much

WHILE it's good to be reassured by police that they are trying their best to protect frontline services, suggesting the number of officers is increasing is a PR spin too far.

Publishing headline-grabbing figures showing a huge rise in neighbourhood officers little more than a year after announcing hundreds of job cuts was surely going to raise eyebrows.

The public are not stupid. They also know the police will do everything possible to keep crime figures low. But let's not insult our intelligence, or those of officers who have lost their jobs, by massaging figures for an easy headline.

Drivers can enjoy a small victory over toll

FINALLY, it seems, Government is taking notice of what the man on the street – or in this case the man in the car, in a traffic jam, by the Dartford Crossing – is saying and unexpectedly dropped the planned toll hike. Given that the tolls were supposed to have been scrapped before, it is a hollow victory.

Green 'earner' for Coalition

FROM past experiences we should know that the Government's right hand doesn't know what the left is doing. (KoS, New airport schemes).

We are continually being punished with green taxes, airport taxes, told to turn our TVs off standby, save plastic bags for re-use, etc, etc.

However, the Government wants to go ahead with yet more pollution and depletion of the Earth's finite resources by building another airport.

This makes it very clear they are only paying lip service to 'saving the world' and are more interested in the fact that pretending to be 'green' is a 'nice little earner'.

Just a glance at our cities ablaze through the night makes a mockery of the petty savings we are expected to make, and the invention of yet more taxes, whose only effect is to give the Government more of our money to waste.

Most of our main party MPs couldn't find their own backsides in the dark.

Let's save the country, get them out and Ukip in.
Phil Granger, West Malling

Remember all war's victims

I HAVE to admit I am becoming a little tired of war memorials, especially those which commemorate only those who died in uniform and on our side.

Surely the time has come to broaden our remembrance to include the victims of war.

Far, far more people die in modern war than are listed on memorials; victims of terror or of indiscriminate bombing and shelling, whether British, German, Irish, Iraqi or Afghan, they too had families, they too had a single unique life to lose.

Whether you think of servicemen as heroes or villains, surely you must also have compassion for their victims.

If we are to have yet another memorial on the White Cliffs, can we not dedicate this one to all the victims of war throughout the world?

Hedley Grenfell-Banks
Hothfield, Ashford

Cameron's out of his EU depth

SO now the politicians expect the public to trust them again.

They really are a poor bunch of people and I don't begin to understand their reasons for wanting to be in control of our late wonderful country because they haven't a clue how to run it.

Mr Cameron had better learn to swim because he is so out of his depth with his dealing with the EU, and as for Mrs Merkel – forget it.

He is going to drown – Germany is, without doubt, going to run Europe

Mrs Merkel is looking after her own country by listening to the people and acting accordingly. Mr Cameron, on the other hand, insists that the whole of this country is wrong and only he is right.

It is time for him to act on what the people want by holding a referendum. At least if they get it wrong they can only blame themselves.

Throughout Europe there are many governments that are just not up to the job and it is time for us to get out of the EU. Standing alone is something we have done many times before.

We may have half of our economy involved with Europe, but we also import a vast amount from Europe so they would not want to lose that.

Once we are clear of the EU we can shut the door and get rid of everyone who has no right to be here, and also those who are draining this country.

We could also make a start in governing our country, outlaw the Human Rights Act and get rid of the 10,000 criminals clogging the prisons. Yes it will be hard, but it is going to be anyway with the ever-hungry EU wanting more money pumped into a lost cause.

When I voted it was for someone to run this country, not someone to take orders from Brussels. Every promise made at the election has been broken and yet we are still expected to trust this rabble.

You can't solve this problem Mr Cameron so let the people have a go while there is time.

If you can't do that then make way for someone who can, please.

RE Tucker, Sheerness

Join climate change march

KENT Green Party is urging Kent and Medway residents to attend the annual Climate March being held in London on Saturday, December 3.

Climate change is not an abstract idea for Kent and Medway. The exceptional number of extreme weather events Kent has experienced since the 1987 hurricane all show the influence of climate change, not as a single cause of extreme rainfall or of droughts, but as factor which makes our weather worse.

Climate change puts more moisture in the atmosphere, making periods of rainfall often more powerful than in the past.

It also means whole climate systems can move north or south, creating long periods of drought as seen in Kent and Medway in the recent past.

But Kent and Medway's long coastline is also vulnerable to sea level rise.

Given a major new report stressing how extreme weather is made worse by climate change, and indications many countries are failing to cut greenhouse gas emissions, we need better action in the UK and abroad.

Dr Geoff Meaden, Chilham

How to cut building costs

AT the launch of the Kent Property Market report, Kent County Council leader Paul Carter spoke about the need to boost construction by simplifying the procurement process and building regulations, which he says are adding 25 per cent to building costs compared to mainland Europe. But that's not the main problem.

Higher salaries, rents and rates account for some of the difference but the main reason for greater construction costs is the procedures that are adopted.

Attempt to cut costs by appointing consultants on the lowest fee bid and they are unlikely to have the time or resources to keep a close eye on progress. So ironically, you often end up with projects on the lowest fee percentage costing the most to construct.

Good value is generally achieved through holistic design, where costs are considered from the outset and where someone is answerable at every stage. Unfortunately the majority of projects involve numerous consultants, who can be a significant cost and are often so far removed from the client they don't fully understand the fundamental brief.

In many cases design inefficiency occurs at the early concept design stage. And with each consultant adding their input at various points in the process, it can be difficult to pinpoint where the error occurred and costs can spiral.

The solution is to have an expert who fully understands costs working within the contractor's own organisation. Why? Because they will be involved in the project from the outset, can take full responsibility, and will have the authority to stop the project and review it if necessary to make sure the budget is kept under control.

So while Paul Carter's comments are valid, streamlining procedures would go a long way to reducing building costs, which will help generate new business growth and get the Kent economy moving.

Boarding community offers academic excellence

THIS co-educational full state boarding school for 11- to 18-year-olds emphasises traditional values alongside academic excellence.

This means that you will only pay for your children's boarding care as the Government pays for their education. The fees of £3,250 a term includes all of your child's boarding, meals, laundry and exams, offering real value for money.

Established for more than 200 years, your son or daughter will enjoy a high quality of pastoral care and benefit from a supportive boarding community.

Set in 150 acres of countryside between Dover and Canterbury,

Duke of York's combines traditional values, a military ethos and outstanding academic results with modern teaching. Its sports facilities include a pool, gym, running track, rugby and cricket pitches, a shooting range and outdoor assault course.

Duke of York's is proud of its pupils' academic achievements and its GCSE results are double the national average: in 2011, more than 90 per cent of pupils gained five or more GCSE grades A*-C or equivalent, including English and maths, with more than 95 per cent passing at A-level. More than 90 per cent of the school's students choose to go on to university.

With a focus on leadership, self-discipline, respect and teamwork, along with ceremonial parades, the Duke of Edinburgh Awards scheme and Combined Cadet Force are at the heart of the school. As Duke of York's is full boarding, your children will never be bored as they are kept busy with more than 70 clubs and activities from which to choose.

Kay Pott, wife of Major Mick Pott MBE of the Parachute Regiment, who has a son at the school, said: "The school has been fantastic – we are over the moon with the way they've brought our son on, we can't praise them enough. We feel he's done better academically than he would have at another school. I really value the school's ethos. They instil respect for yourself and others, and build up self-esteem so the children become confident young men and women."

The school, which became an academy last year, has been awarded £24.9m to transform boarding houses and teaching facilities. In 2010, it received £9.5m from its academy sponsor, the Ministry of Defence, to build a sixth-form boarding house.

The academy's specialities are science, sports, music and outdoor education.

IT needs are put in focus

KENT County Council is joining forces with Microsoft UK and up-skilling group Uke Learning to provide opportunities for young people seeking careers in IT

Employment of IT professionals is set to rise by 113,000 jobs in the four years from the end of 2011 to the end of 2015, up from a 2011 base of 1,450,000, according to industry analysts.

However, the numbers of entrants into IT from higher education are not rising fast enough to match demand, hence the need for apprenticeships.

The requirement for Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics (STEM)-qualified people stretches from engineering and pharmaceuticals to financial services – further challenging the number of available graduates. According to industry research, the UK just isn't training enough people at this time.

Microsoft and Uke Learning will be further developing their apprenticeship model to a higher level, and with university tuition fees rising next year many young people will be looking for alternatives to full-time higher education where they can get a credible and relevant qualification at degree level.

Mick Durham, director of Uke Learning, says that employers are waking up to the relevance of apprenticeships where potential staff gain the academic knowledge needed at the same time as gaining relevant workplace experience.

KCC cabinet member Mike Whiting says that apprenticeships such as the one offered by Microsoft, IT Skillsman and Uke Learning gives young people the opportunity to achieve industry-recognised qualifications while getting on-the-job training.

Last month three young men from Kent, Raymond Brett, Mitch Wright and Aidan Edwards, started their career in IT with a two-day induction at Microsoft's campus in Reading.

Pictured with their Uke Learning tutor in the accompanying advertisement, they joined young apprentices from all over the UK.

If you live in Kent and are considering a career in IT, contact Uke Learning by email (bdt@ukelearning.com) or phone (020 8810 6066), or visit www.ukelarning.com.

If you are an organisation willing to participate in the apprenticeship scheme, please contact microsoft.apprentice@itskillsman.co.uk.

Making learning more interesting

THERE was once a time when the 'chalk and talk' method of teaching was all most school and college students received.

While such traditional techniques still have a place in education today, it is imperative classroom leaders realise children react differently to different ways of learning.

MidKent College is one such establishment where its learners are treated as individuals, and where textbooks are occasionally thrown aside for less conventional forms of teaching.

"We get some students who tell us they hate maths, but what they really hate is how they were taught maths at school," said Level 2 course tutor Steven Keevil.

"It's that old maxim where if you always do what you've always done, you'll always get what you've always got.

"Some people respond well to traditional class-based learning, but those who don't need an opportunity to try different things. That's why at the college we'll sometimes teach angles by playing pool or use music as a starting point for discussing other subjects."

MidKent College operates from its two main campuses at Maidstone and Gillingham – the latter being home to the sparkling new £86 Medway campus – and from September 2012 will take over the building in Maidstone currently occupied by the University for the Creative Arts.

Having existed for more than a century, the college has played a massive part in the training and development of countless learners across the county who have gone on to become important members of the business community.

And with better facilities and a wider range of vocational courses than ever before, it is well placed to continue to provide the best car mechanics, hairdressers, electricians and more who will keep our communities ticking.

Emma Wilkinson, A-level lecturer in history and politics, said it was hugely important to use a range of teaching methods.

"It's essential because it helps keep learners' attention, which has a knock-on effect on behaviour and class management," she said.

"We try to cater for everyone's needs because everyone is different. If our learners know we'll occasionally do something outside the box that they really enjoy, they're more likely to try other things, too. There's still a place for 'chalk and talk' teaching, but you need a bit of everything."

Students in Mrs Wilkinson's politics class recently emulated the likes of Prime Minister David Cameron and Labour Party leader Ed Miliband by performing and filming their own party-political broadcasts in front of each other.

"Hopefully they'll remember doing this years from now," she said. "People tend to remember the trips they went on at school or the more unusual lessons they had, which most of the time means they were effective teaching techniques."

"Some of my students would have felt nervous speaking in front of their classmates, but hopefully they won't forget it."

We care for our staff so that they can care for you

CNCA is Kent's most respected independent nursing and care agency and the leading provider of training for professional care in the community.

Since 1993, CNCA has been providing qualified carers, support workers, residential social-workers, care assistants and companions to the NHS, Social Services, private hospitals and trusts, nursing homes, residential homes, day-care centres and housing associations across Kent.

A key contribution of the agency is its support of adults with learning difficulties, in homes and in the community, so that they can lead as independent lives as possible.

The agency operates 24 hours a day, 365 days of the year. It has established a reputation for responding quickly, providing the highest standards in professional care and exceeding expectation in terms of client satisfaction.

In a changing business environment, CNCA maintains the highest traditional standards but offers innovative solutions to the modern care industry.

It can provide trained, qualified staff at a moment's notice; and it develops flexible long-term programmes that provide clients with the right kind of carers exactly where and when needed.

CNCA has rigorous training induction procedures for its own staff and has established a Training and Assessment Centre to provide in-house NVQ supervision and assessment for all major care disciplines.

Every day it looks to see where it can improve, accepting and understanding its responsibilities. It will act without hesitation to do all that is required and more.

Sometimes people face 'extraordinary' problems in their lives, some expected, others unique situations that occur out of the blue.

What is meant by 'extraordinary' is a problem faced outside the realm of 'ordinary' lives. For instance, a loved one might be enduring some form of physical disability, or a family member experiencing the after-effects of a serious operation; a child might be born with severe learning difficulties, or autism; or, indeed, a parent could have grown too old to safely fend for themselves.

Each situation poses its own problems and difficulties. Each comes wrapped in its own unique circumstances, not only for the family but more importantly for the person who requires support and care to help them live as 'ordinary' a life as possible.

If you are facing an extraordinary situation, the question is: 'Where do I turn for help?'. The first port of call is usually, and appropriately, Social Services, who will try to help find a solution to your problem.

Unfortunately, many changes are taking place in the care sector and more emphasis is placed on the individual to arrange their own carers.

Herein lies the difficulty and possibly another dilemma for the family. CNCA has been helping people throughout Kent for more than 13 years, supporting families and their loved ones at home with qualified carers and support workers.

All staff undertake rigorous police and other statutory checks, a full induction process that examines both their qualifications and references and undergo regular training designed to keep them one step ahead of requirements.

Once a comprehensive needs assessment is carried out, the appropriate care is delivered and maintained.

CNCA operates a 24-hour service 365 days a year, manned by care co-ordinators who have detailed knowledge of each individual's needs.

Kim Stevens, chief executive officer of CNCA, said: "We are committed to providing the best care services and the best care training in the region."

Generation could 'disappear from workplace' warns business leader

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

ACTION needs to be taken to stop an entire generation "disappearing from the workforce", according to a leading voice in the county's business community

The latest unemployment statistics for the UK show that youth unemployment has reached 1.02 million, female unemployment is 1.09 million and overall unemployment is at a 17-year high of 2.62 million.

Roger House, chairman for the Federation of Small Businesses (FSB) in Kent and Medway, said: "Youth unemployment figures are truly shocking and with more than one million young people unable to find a job, the Government must wake up and take action to turn this around."

"Its Autumn Statement is the perfect time to do this."

House added that he felt Kent had been treated unfairly by Westminster when it came to incentives to create jobs.

He said: "The FSB has long argued for a National Insurance contributions cut for micro-businesses as a way of creating jobs. It is not logical or fair that affluent areas of the west and north of the UK enjoy these benefits when deprived areas of Kent are disqualified."

CONCERN: FSB's Roger House wants tax cuts to help ease youth unemployment

"As a first step towards that goal, a measure the Government could adopt would be to cut National Insurance contributions for those aged between 16-24 taken on in a new job in a micro-business. This measure would target tax cuts where they are most needed and halt rising youth unemployment."

"The Government must ensure that young people are not hindered at the very beginning of their careers.

"This policy would help achieve that and at the same time improve the climate small firms trade in. We cannot afford to watch this generation just disappear from the workforce."

Kent and Medway has 35,402 registered as unemployed in the latest figures – up 85 on the previous assessment made in July.

Medway has 7,118 unemployed – an actual decrease of two. Thanet has the next largest number at 4,570 but again saw a recent fall, this time of 17.

But Swale saw 50 more people out of work, bringing the total to 3,316, and Shepway 56 more, totalling 2,652.

Canterbury – which has a large number of public-sector workers employed in schools and hospitals and by local authorities – saw an increase in the jobless total of 74 to 2,426.

The scale of Britain's youth unemployment has alarmed experts, who warn of dire consequences for the future.

Martina Milburn, chief executive of the youth charity The Prince's Trust, said youth unemployment reaching the symbolic one million mark was "a wake-up call for Britain".

The Prince's Trust has undertaken research pointing to the devastating impact of unemployment on young people, which it described as "a mental health hazard" that can trigger problems such as self-loathing, panic attacks and depression.

Samuel Tombs, UK economist at the consultancy Capital Economics, said: "It [the figure] will raise fears of a lost generation."

ACCOUNTANCY

Free consultations on offer for SME owners

A KENT accountancy is trying a different way of boosting custom by offering free consultations and business advice to prospective clients.

McBrides, recently short-listed in the AccountingWEB Practice Excellence Awards, is among the first in Kent to register with the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England & Wales as a Business Advice Service firm.

Small and medium-business owner-managers have the opportunity to discuss their business ideas with a qualified chartered accountant through a free consultation.

Managing partner Nick Paterno said: "McBrides has a 35-year track record of helping owner-managed and entrepreneurial businesses achieve their goals and we have always been more than simply 'an accountant' to our clients."

"Registration with the ICAEW's new BAS scheme reaffirms our commitment to the business community in that we are able to offer sound business advice, from start-up through to exit. This not only takes a huge weight off their minds but ensures their businesses are running at optimum capacity."

McBrides Accountants LLP is based in Nexus House, Sidcup, just off the A20, and has a total of 42 highly qualified staff and six partners.

FOOD

Manufacturer's development plan helps firm win at industry 'Oscars'

A KENT company has been named one of the UK's best food and drink manufacturers at the final of the industry's equivalent to the Oscars.

Ardo UK was among the finalists in the prestigious Food Manufacturing Excellence Awards 2011, at London's Park Plaza Riverbank.

The company, which has invested £15 million on a new factory equipped with the latest technology and processing equipment, was congratulated on the way it had developed its business despite crop shortages, adverse exchange rates and recessionary pressures.

It has also reduced its accident rates, cut its carbon footprint and increased manufacturing efficiency as well as focusing heavily on waste and energy reduction.

Ardo UK sources, freezes and packs frozen vegetables, fruit, rice and pasta which it supplies to supermarkets, independent shops, caterers and food manufacturers, employing more than 200 people at its Charing base.

Managing director Stephen Waugh said: "We are delighted the hard work of our staff has been recognised."

"These are challenging economic times, but we feel our recent investment has been extremely worthwhile and has resulted in a more streamlined operation."

Ardo UK is part of Ardo, one of Europe's largest food companies. Based in Belgium, it has 15 production and packing units in eight European countries, with an annual turnover in excess of 600 million euros.

CONSTRUCTION

Awards seminar good news for construction

H & K SAFETY Services Limited of Ashford has held its third annual awards seminar in the mansion house at Port Lympne Wild Animal Park, attracting 50 representatives from Kent construction companies and designer consultants.

Awards went to Betacove Ltd, Civils Contracting Ltd, DCB (Kent) Ltd, DMA Mechanical & Air Conditioning Ltd, Epps Construction Ltd, Geoforte Ground Engineering Ltd, Logan Construction Ltd, The NPS Group, PA Grant Electrical Contractors Ltd and WW Martin (Thanet) Ltd.

Individual outstanding achievement awards this year went to Terry Beer (DMA), Ricky Olsen (Betacove), Julia Robinson (WWM) and Alex Wren (Geoforte).

A spokesman for H & K said "The awards are good news in an industry suffering badly at the moment and are hard earned as, unlike the majority of these schemes, ours is based on performance across the whole life of the project, with tough competition when you consider around 700 site inspections are made each year."

"Importantly, a big thank-you is due to the staff at Port Lympne who made the event very special."

Green-energy gift boosts children's hospice funds

DEMELZA Hospice Care for Children has received a green energy gift from a Dartford renewables company.

The roof of the Sittingbourne children's hospice is now home to a 20-panel solar photovoltaic installation, donated and installed by Enevis.

The solar PV system, which converts daylight into electricity, will provide annual energy savings of £355 and tax-free Feed-in Tariff returns of £1,500 – bringing £1,855 each year into Demelza's funds, much-needed money that can be used to provide care for more than 700 life-limited children.

The installation also boasts strong green credentials, with CO2 savings of 2.1 tonnes per year.

Debbie McSwiney, deputy head of care at Demelza, said: "We are delighted that Enevis are supporting Demelza by providing solar panels free of charge for our Sittingbourne hospice.

"Not only will this enable us to have a sustainable and green-energy source but we will be saving a considerable amount of money, which will mean more resources can be spent directly on caring for the families who need our help."

Gary Mayatt, managing director of Enevis, said: "We were delighted that Demelza Hospice Care for Children agreed to accept our solar PV donation. The system will enable the hospice to make substantial savings to its energy bills while also generating its own income from the Government's tax-free Feed-in Tariff.

"The additional £1,855 will help Demelza continue to offer its dedicated care service to children suffering from life-limiting illnesses as well as invaluable support to their families."

Consultancy's 'five-point' guide for employers ahead of reforms to pension plan

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

AN EMPLOYEE benefit consultant company has issued a five-point pension-reforms checklist to ensure employers are prepared for a major amendment to legislation.

Brunning Newman Houghton Limited (BNH), based in Tunbridge Wells, compiled the detailed five-step plan to provide businesses with an introduction to the Workplace Pension Reforms (WPR).

Under the new legislation, from 2012 every employer will be required to automatically enrol their workers into a qualifying pension scheme if they have not already joined a scheme. Employers must also pay contributions on behalf of their employees.

BNH's five-point plan leads businesses through the WPR process; from planning ahead of their 'staging date' through to the establishment of an implementation team and communicating the changes to all scheme members.

Tim Mills, senior consultant at BNH, said: "It is important to appreciate that every employer will be affected by this legislation and it represents a significant change to the present set of regulations."

"This checklist offers guidance to employers who either operate an existing pension plan or for those who currently do not provide pensions for employees."

"Employers who do not operate a pension scheme at present will possibly have the most work to do. Accordingly, this group should take extra care when planning to allow sufficient time for the necessary systems upgrades [HR and payroll] to get a suitable pension arrangement in place, plus the all-important communications to employees."

PENSION REFORMS CHECKLIST

1 KNOW YOUR 'STAGING DATE'

BNH can help employers establish their 'staging date' or businesses can find their 'staging date' from the list published by The Pensions Regulator (TPR), which can be found here: <http://www.thepensionsregulator.gov.uk/staging-date-timeline.aspx#s4566>.

2 START THE PLANNING PROCESS

FOR employers with an existing staff pension scheme, the process should start by assessing whether your current scheme meets the qualifying criteria for existing active members, reviewing the scheme to confirm if it can be used for automatic enrolment of new members and ensuring contribution levels are adequate to meet the legislative requirements.

Those who do not currently operate a pension scheme for employees will need to ensure that a suitable 'qualifying workplace pension scheme' (QWPS) is in place in good time before their duties commence.

BNH recommends that this work is started at least 12 months before your 'staging date'.

3 CONSIDER THE IMPACT ON ANY EXISTING SCHEME OR SCHEMES

BNH review service will check present arrangements for compliance, or make recommendations for a suitable scheme if employers do not currently operate a workplace pension scheme.

4 ESTABLISH AN IMPLEMENTATION TEAM

BNH would advise firms to ensure they understand the key legal requirements and timeframes, assess the impact on systems (payroll and HR processes) and engage with their pension advisers at the earliest opportunity.

5 COMMUNICATE THE CHANGES TO ALL SCHEME MEMBERS

IT IS normally the job of the pension-scheme adviser to communicate the benefits of membership and, bearing in mind the significant changes being introduced through this legislation, BNH would recommend that a suitable programme be agreed and implemented as part of the timetabling for this process.

High-speed broadband roll-out is good news for south east businesses

BT is boosting its engineering workforce in Kent with 44 new recruits to work on its super-fast broadband expansion.

The new engineers will be based in Tunbridge Wells and Canterbury and many of them will be ex-Armed Forces personnel.

They are joining BT over the next few weeks to help the company deliver fibre-based broadband to two-thirds of UK homes and businesses by the end of 2014, a year ahead of the original target of 2015.

All the new engineers are due to be in place by the end of January.

John Weaver, BT regional director for the South East, said the acceleration of the £2.5 billion programme would help stimulate the economy, drive regional growth and benefit communities keen to experience the technology.

He said: "The new jobs will help us to support and create the digital infrastructure the county needs for the jobs of tomorrow. Our current engineering teams are busy installing fibre broadband across Kent at a pace we believe rivals anywhere in the world – and our new recruits will help us take the new technology to even more homes and businesses.

"We have made clear our determination to extend fibre broadband beyond our current commercial deployment plans, and we would welcome the opportunity to work with the public sector to reach the more challenging parts of the region."

"We have a strong track record of delivering broadband partnerships, we're prepared to commit significant sums to make it happen and our growing, flexible workforce will help ensure we are ready for action in any part of the country.

"We are proud that many of these new jobs will be filled by ex-Armed Forces personnel, who are highly skilled, motivated and have experience of complex engineering tasks in challenging environments."

The announcement was welcomed by Malcolm Hyde, South East CBI regional director, who said: "This is good news from BT. These are skilled, high-quality jobs which will make a major contribution to the future success of our region."

"The roll-out of super-fast broadband is one of the most important investments taking place in the South East. It can transform the way we live and work and play a key role in building a stronger business community."

Business park to retain steam railway links during expansion

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

EXPANSION at a thriving west Kent business park is to incorporate an important part of the county's steam-railway heritage.

Earlier this year, development plans to build 12,000 sq ft and 20,000 sq ft units at the Hawhurst Station Business Park were approved, with parts of the former railway site to be incorporated.

The station, which closed in 1961, was survived by an old steam-engine shed and signal box, still painted in Southern Railway colours.

The 14-acre site, just off the A299 between Hawhurst and Cranbrook, will see further development, but park-owner Peter Dunlop is keen to protect Kent's railway heritage.

He said: "We have worked closely with the planning authorities to agree a way of enhancing facilities here while preserving the history of steam railways in Kent.

"One option we are considering is to relocate the signal box to the Kent & East Sussex Railway at Tenterden."

Dunlop's family business, Kent Woodware, marks its 100th anniversary on Tuesday, December 13, after a century on the site.

He said: "My grandfather started the company in 1911 when he rented land on the old railway-station site. We used to manufacture wooden components for the bedding, brush and tool handle trades.

"My father bought the site when the station closed in 1961, and when I joined in 1966 trade was booming, while the business park was also attracting other traders.

"By the 1990s it was no longer economical for us to continue and we ceased manufacturing, but in 2001 I restarted the business."

The businessman has also commissioned design and construction company Directline Structures to develop the environmentally-sensitive site by adding steel-framed industrial units.

MODERN TWIST: Hawhurst Station Business Park is incorporating parts of the former railway site

tures to develop the environmentally-sensitive site by adding steel-framed industrial units.

He said: "I have been delighted with the quality of their work. They have kept to schedule and to budget, and they deal with all the planning and technical issues, leaving me free to get on with running my business.

"It is reassuring to know they are on the case."

The firm has been interested in the newly-built units from farther afield, but they have been quickly snapped up by two companies already operating from the site.

Family-owned food import and distributor Maws Fine Foods will take one of the units, while desserts-manufacturer Rhokett also needed larger premises to expand their businesses.

Duncan Murray, from Directline Structures, said: "Maws move into the new unit from the engine shed on the site, while Rhokett is expanding from another unit we built five years ago.

"It's very encouraging to see existing tenants committing their futures to this part of Kent."

The units should be completed by February 2012.

RETAIL

FULL HOUSE: Fremlin Walk centre in Maidstone

Shopping mall expects full unit uptake during the Christmas period

MAIDSTONE'S Fremlin Walk management team has claimed that all shop units will be full during the Christmas rush.

Despite huge competition from Bluewater shopping centre, Hempstead Valley and Chatham high street, the Fremlin Walk group says the recent additions have proved the town centre is attractive to both businesses and customers alike.

Lloyd Wright, centre manager at Fremlin Walk, is confident the new shopping sector will be jam-packed this festive season.

He said: "Given the retailer interest, our 0 per cent vacancy rate and the investment in the town-centre regeneration, it is clear that Maidstone has a bright future.

"We have a stylish offer that is reflective of what our catchment area demands.

"Despite reports in the trade press which list towns like Maidstone as being 'hard hit' by recession, our retailers trade well and we have excellent relationships with them."

Top clothes retailer Superdry has recently taken up a unit and will be fully let by Christmas, while other units have been taken up by House of Fraser, Zara, Laura Ashley, Pret a Manger and Pandora.

The town centre is also showing figures of shop vacancies at 10 per cent, below the national average of 14 per cent.

GOOD CHEER: Robert Lench

Wine merchant given invaluable help on voyage to set up shop in Far East

A SPECIALIST wine merchant based in Sevenoaks is celebrating the opening of an office in Hong Kong this month with advice and support from UK Trade & Investment (UKTI).

BWI Ltd's speciality is the wines of the Bordeaux region. It covers all aspects of the wine-distribution business and even has its own wine-producing chateau in France, Chateau Carignan, bought in 2007.

The firm was established in 1998 by Andy Lench as a UK-based sister company to Bordeaux Wine Locators, which he had formed after emigrating to the US. BWI was set up to offer wine opportunities for private clients looking to buy, collect, consume and invest in fine Bordeaux wine.

In 2003, Andy brought his brother Robert in as managing director to build the business internationally, using his background in financial services.

A prime focus of this development was to access the growing market for high-quality wines in the Far East, principally Hong Kong, but also Singapore and Malaysia amid others.

Robert recalled: "We were sending someone out to the Far East about three times a year, so it was clear that soon we would need a permanent presence in the region.

"In August 2010, to help make this happen, and to access expert advice on building our business in the region, I approached Terry Dunk, an international trade adviser with UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) in the South East. Terry had been recommended to me by a whisky producer he had advised."

With financial and logistical support under UKTI's Tradeshow Access Programme, BWI was able to exhibit at the Hong Kong Wine & Spirits show in November 2010.

Meanwhile, UKTI staff at the British Consulate-General in Hong Kong have been providing local knowledge and contacts to facilitate the setting up of a BWI office in the territory, introducing Robert to hardware-suppliers to equip the operation, for example.

Prior to working with UKTI, BWI's sales turnover was £8.85 million, of which £1.51million (17 per cent) was from exports. Exports now comprise some 20 per cent of turnover, and the firm hopes to raise this to 30 per cent over the next 18 months.

"The support we have received from UKTI has enabled us to move the business forward more quickly than would otherwise have been possible," said Robert.

"I have been very impressed with all the UKTI staff I have encountered, both in the UK and in Hong Kong.

"It's one thing knowing our own business, but quite another knowing how to conduct it in a foreign market, and UKTI has been invaluable in this respect, with practical as well as theoretical assistance.

"Caroline Sprod in Hong Kong has been particularly supportive, while Terry Dunk at UKTI South East has put a lot of work in to strategic planning and familiarising us with the market."

College offers help to redundant workers

Jobs for the first health apprentices

FOUR young people are celebrating securing full-time positions at Medway Community Healthcare after successfully completing the organisation's first apprenticeship scheme.

Since April, 2010, the apprentices have combined studying towards an NVQ in business administration with working at Medway Community Healthcare, which provides a range of health services for adults and children plus specialist, urgent and out of hours services.

The apprentices – Mary Everett, Liz Emery, Emma Waterman and Abi Durham – have now qualified and are working full-time in the organisation.

Mary Everett, 18, from Rainham said: "The apprenticeship has given me a head start in my career. I now have a professional qualification and a job. It has been the best thing that I could have done after leaving school."

Medway Community Healthcare have recruited a further seven apprentices who joined the scheme a year ago and is recruiting more young people to join the scheme this year.

Apprentices are supported throughout the course by an experienced 'buddy' colleague.

Swale women to get empowered

THE latest project from charity Diversity House is Swale Women Empowering Women, to help women achieve more in their lives and careers.

SWEW will aim to be a major source of support for all women living or working in Swale. It will offer a range of activities and services to help women to improve their personal lives, career and business.

Through mentoring, coaching, volunteering, training, seminars, workshops, SWEW will give women the opportunity to explore and develop their business ideas and career goals; enhance their interpersonal skills and personal development; build confidence and self-esteem; gain focus; and get motivated.

Christine Locke, chairwoman of Diversity House, said: "Women empowerment is all about raising consciousness, building skills and promoting inclusion." Membership of SWEW is free.

THANET College has launched a new series of programmes for people who have recently been made redundant, or are facing the prospect of losing their job.

If you are 19 or over and are either at risk of redundancy, or have been made redundant within the last three months, you could benefit from the Skills Support for Redundancy course run from a number of locations in Thanet.

The free programme gives candidates access to fully funded training opportunities, including re-training and gaining important qualifications.

Advice on writing a CV is on offer, as well as essential interview tips and support when making job applications.

All participants are also allocated a personal job broker, who aims to match each candidate with an employer, organise interviews and provide bespoke interview preparation.

The programmes are run from the Argyle Centre in Ramsgate, Margate's Mill House, the Golf Centre in Deal, and Thanet College's main campus in Broadstairs.

Attendance times depend on results of your initial assessment. The goal is to help people find work within 13 weeks of completing training with local employers such as Saga, Premier Inn and Wettons. Candidates have secured jobs across many industry sectors including leisure and tourism, retail and hospitality, and catering.

Thanet College has already helped 75 people into work, one of whom is Christopher McKeen, 23, who secured employment as a customer service agent at Saga after taking part in the course.

Chris lost confidence after being made redundant in March, and was referred to the course by Jobcentre Plus.

After receiving advice and guidance, as well as training in telephone and sales techniques, he was successful in an interview with Saga, starting work in July.

"The support I gained from the college has been absolutely brilliant. I am really enjoying my new job and being able to support my family," he said.

Also available is Thanet College's programme Skills Support for the Unemployed, in partnership with Jobcentre Plus.

For those struggling to find work, the programme helps them improve their job prospects, arranging training and providing access to jobs brokering.

Thanet College can also support young people aged 18-24 with gaining apprenticeship opportunities, depending on eligibility criteria.

Debbie Davies, 46, took part in the programme after being unemployed for six months.

She was directed into hospitality training, for which she achieved a certificate. She was then successful at interview with Premier Inn, where she now works as a housekeeper.

If you are interested in taking part, contact the employability team at the Argyle Centre on 01843 590241, or at Mill Lane House on 01843 230876.

Young pupils learn a university lesson in the science of happiness

YEAR six school pupils have learned how to make a happy school during an event organised and run by psychologists at the University of Kent.

The How To Make a Happy School event involved children from Gillingham's Skinner Street Primary School and Brompton-Westbrook Primary School.

Pupils received training to become 'Young Scientists' and conduct their own investigation into what makes their school a happy place. Artist Tracey Falcon and Kent-based arts organisation People United worked on the programme with the university's psychology team.

The pupils visited the university's Canterbury campus, where they learned about the science of happiness, explored what makes people happy and how happiness is a 'superpower'.

They then created their own survey to find out what makes people in their school happy. Back at the school, they conducted their own research, questioning other children and teachers across the school.

In one school the '5 Fs' were clear frontrunners for happiness: fish and chips; Fridays, friends; family; and fun. The pupils then got creative and made their own happiness superhero.

Child development specialist at the university Dr Lindsey Cameron said: "We need to find out what makes young people happy, and who better to investigate this than young people themselves."

Mechanics brushing up on their car computer knowledge

MOTOR mechanics revved up their knowledge of the diesel engine at a free event held at MidKent College's Maidstone Campus.

Garages and other motoring firms from across the county were represented at the event, which was organised by the west Kent member association of the Institute of the Motor Industry.

Held in one of the campus' purpose-built motor vehicle workshops, the event included a demonstration by James Dillon of the diagnostics training body Technical Topics.

He said: "It's critical that mechanics constantly seek to update their knowledge. The type of technology used in the design of cars is advancing at a rapid pace, so you can't just rely on the things you learned when you first started out.

"The industry has gone from having no computers in cars in the 1980s to about 70 today. It's phenomenal."

Included in Mr Dillon's demonstration was information on how to get the best from an oscilloscope – a form of diagnostic equipment used to detect engine faults.

West Kent IMI chairman and former MidKent College tutor Fred Holmes said the Maidstone campus's workshops were ideal for hosting such events.

He added: "They're very useful because they have all the equipment we need and are a great place to give practical demonstrations.

"We're always keen to run events like this for our members because it's vital for their continued professional development."

Turner Contemporary art gallery head wins top education award

THE head of learning at Turner Contemporary in Margate has won a prestigious education award.

Karen Esleay won one of four inaugural Marsh Awards for Excellence in Gallery Education, presented at a special evening event run by engage, the National Association for Gallery Education.

Turner Contemporary says learning is at the heart of its work, and it runs a Learning Programme that encompasses schools, community group projects and family activities.

Karen has been working closely with local people for more than 10 years in the run up to the opening of the gallery in April 2011.

She said: "My role has been to ensure that local people feel involved in the development of the gallery, and see it as a valuable resource."

More 690,000 people were involved in the work of Turner Contemporary before the gallery opened, and over 14,000 people have taken part in its learning programme.

Karen added: "I am really proud to have won a Marsh Award for Excellence in Gallery Education.

"It is a privilege to work for Turner Contemporary, and to develop projects with the local community. We know we have a positive impact on people's lives, and working with artists and people of all ages is endlessly interesting and rewarding."

(B2007 THOMSETT WAY), QUEENBOROUGH)
(40 MPH SPEED LIMIT) ORDER 2011

(CULLET DRIVE & RUSHENDEN ROAD, QUEENBOROUGH) (WAITING RESTRICTIONS) ORDER 2011

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984

NOTICE is hereby given that the Kent County Council, in exercise of its powers has made an Order under Sections 81 to 84 of and part IV of Schedule 9 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, the effect of which has introduced a 40mph speed limit on a section of the Rushenden Relief Road called Thomsett Way (B2007) and;

Under Sections 1, 2 and 124 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 as amended by Schedule 8 of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 and part 6 of the Traffic Management Act 2004, the effect of which has amended the existing "At Any Time" Waiting Restrictions in Cullet Drive and Rushenden Road at the locations where they meet Thomsett Way (B2007).

The Kent County Council is working in partnership with the South East England Development Agency, known as SEEDA to promote further development and regeneration at Rushenden and Queenborough on the Isle of Sheppey.

Thomsett Way is currently known as the Rushenden Relief Road and will become the B2007 part of which has become subject to a 40mph speed limit from its north eastern roundabout junction with the A249 Breille Way south westwards, to a point 40 metres east of the mid point of its roundabout junction with Cullet Drive. The remaining length will automatically be a 30 mph speed limit by virtue of street lighting. The current B2007, which is called Main Road, will be de-classified. There has also been a need to alter small lengths of the existing "At Any Time" Waiting Restrictions in Cullet Drive and Rushenden Road at the locations where they meet Thomsett Way.

The proposals involve substantial mixed commercial and housing development, to provide new employment and homes as well as complement the existing development.

Access to the existing development through Queenborough is poor and a new link road called Thomsett Way, Queenborough, between the A249 and the existing and new development areas is proposed. SEEDA has secured Homes and Community Agency and other government and private sector funding.

The link road will be a new carriageway, part dual carriageway and part single carriageway. It will run between the new roundabout at Neats Court, constructed as part of the A249 Swale Crossing scheme, and pass over the railway connecting to a new junction on Rushenden Road. An intermediate roundabout will serve Cullet Drive.

A copy of the scheme which will come into operation on Monday 28th November 2011, an explanatory statement and a plan showing the extents of the proposals can be inspected during normal office hours at The Kent County Council Offices, Sessions House, County Road, Maidstone Kent, ME14 1XQ, Swale Borough Council Offices, Swale House, East Street, Sittingbourne ME10 3HT and at Queenborough Town Council Offices, 44 High Street, Isle of Sheppey, Queenborough, Kent, ME11 5AA.

Anyone may, by application to the High Court within 6 weeks of the date of publication of this Notice, challenge the validity of the Orders or of any provision contained in them on the grounds that it is not within the powers conferred by the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, or of any instrument made there under, or that there has been a failure to comply with any statutory requirement in relation to the Order.

The new length will form a link between the two existing sections of the relief road which are between Grovehurst interchange on the A249 and Ridham Avenue, and between Castle Road and the East Hall Farm residential development.

Jacobs Engineering UK Ltd has been commissioned to work in partnership with the Kent County Council to progress the legal procedures necessary to implement the proposed measures.

Fish goes back through the scales

WHEN Fish hit the big time with the band Marillion back in the early 80s, the group seemed a throwback to an earlier age.

Their progressive-rock style seemed at odds with the wave of ska and new-romantic sounds filling the charts. Despite this, the group had big hits with numbers like Kayleigh and Lavender.

By 1988 the big Scot had fallen out of love with touring in a band and decided a solo career might be better for both his health and sanity.

He said: "It was a big change going from being in a band to being on my own, but I have no regrets. I have been solo for longer than I have been in a band and I have seen a lot more things than I would have done if I had stayed in Marillion."

As a solo artist, the singer, whose real name is Derek W Dick, built up a loyal fan base, but in recent years he has gone through ups and downs that almost ended his career.

In 2009 he had to have an operation on his vocal chords to save his voice.

He said: "I knew in 2008 I had something that was a bit more serious than a sore throat, so I went to an ENT unit to see what was wrong. It was a very dark time. I was dealing with the whole shadow that it might be cancer as well."

After several operations and a lot of rest, the singer slowly returned to performing last year.

He said: "I was trying to get back into it again and build my confidence."

The singer started performing with his friends Frank Usher (guitar) and Foss Paterson (keyboards). The stripped-down three-piece gave his back catalogue a new acoustic sound that has proved hugely popular.

"It is extraordinary how it has grown. It started off as a small thing just to do a few gigs, but then it seems to have gripped people's imagination. I didn't expect the audience to react in the way they have done. We have recorded more than three hours of material."

The band have now toured Europe and played more than 200 gigs, and Fish will be bringing his new sound to Whitstable next month.

He said: "We never do the same set two nights in a row because the audience get to choose what we play. It allows me to be a bit more intimate with the crowd. As a three-piece we have been able to play places we never could have before.

Ed Hill meets the former Marillion frontman heading our way

A FEAST OF CONSEQUENCES: Fish is back on tour and ready to entertain us intimately next month

"In Germany we did more than 60 shows – it has been phenomenal. I find if you get more than 600 people you start to lose that intimacy unless the venue is just right.

"We have played coal mines, churches, Art-Deco cinemas. I do enjoy that banter with the audience. If I go and see an artist do a show, I like to see them dealing with the people there on the night, not just coming out with the same old banal rock'n'roll rubbish."

Aside from the tour, Fish is working on a documentary film and preparing to record his next album, A Feast Of Consequences.

"People say to me 'When is your next album coming – you haven't done one since 2007'. Well, I had the voice problems and then I got married for six months in a relationship that crashed.

"It might have been easy to go out and write another album, but it would have been rubbish because my head would not have been in the right place. I don't like to write when I'm on the road because all my energy is going into the performance on the night. You pay a price if you put a bad album out. My last one, 13th Star, was particularly good and that is the benchmark I want to maintain."

Fish says the uncertainty of the internet and music has created problems for artists and making money, but it has also had benefits.

"Young musicians ask me for advice and I have no idea what to say about the internet. It seems to have brought the live scene back into play and a lot of tribute bands are being shuffled out the door in favour of new, proper bands.

"But the downloading thing has crucified us because nobody knows where the money goes."

And the singer, who has had more than 30 years in the music business, condemns the rise of the X Factor phenomenon.

"I find that whole thing pretty repugnant. To me, it misses the whole point of what making music is about. Of course you can get someone to sing one song well if you constantly train them, but can they write a song and then go out and entertain people live without all the hype of being on a TV programme?"

Fish has acted in films over the years but says life on the road makes getting parts difficult. He says one benefit of the internet is it gives him a more immediate connection with his fans.

He said: "On the Fish Facebook page when we started on this tour we had about 3,000 followers – now we have 18,000. That comes through communicating with the fans. It's a kind of guerilla-warfare approach that will hopefully fund the next album."

After his health scare, the musician says he feels he is in a better place.

He said: "I am really enjoying my music at the moment. At the end of the day, the last thing I want to be is Robbie Williams. I am quite happy making enough money to pay the mortgage, paying my costs and touring around the world – and that's it."

■ Fish will be playing the East Quay in Whitstable on Saturday, December 3. Visit <http://whitlive.co.uk> for tickets.

Pub pushes traditions from every direction at a time to eat merrily

THERE is nothing more British than sitting in an old flagstone and beamed pub, drinking beer and eating food.

But in the height of winter it is even better as the open log-fire crackles and plates of steaming vegetables and meats are served up.

I have just described exactly my experience of the Red Lion in Hernhill.

The 14th-century inn sits on a classical village green sporting its white walls and dark wooden beams, and after hearing that the eatery was under new management, the true country Brit in me decided it would be a necessity to give it a try on a cold November evening.

My other half and I were sat at a table just across from the roaring fire and the classical winter meal began.

We were handed the menu, which featured many pub-grub classics like beer-battered cod or sausage and mash, but it was the weekly specials that really grabbed the attention.

My mouth watered at the description of the hunter's chicken and 13-ounce T-bone steak. But first things first, the starters.

I plumped for something light as I was guessing the main course could well be hefty. Opting for the prawn-and-smoked salmon salad (£5.25), I was pleasantly surprised by both presentation and taste of a dish that can often be knocked up without too much care. The salmon was both fresh and delicate, while the mixed greenery and dressing complemented it well.

It was the right size and left me looking forward to my next course.

When a dish is described on the menu as a monster pork shank, you can imagine it will be on the large side.

I was not disappointed. The plate of food arrived with the steaming pork shank artistically placed upright, supported by a bed of mashed potato and covered in a rich red wine jus (£11.95). As I tucked in, I felt as if I had travelled back to Medieval times and should have a metal tankard in hand and be demanding another flagon of ale from the barkeep.

The tender pork fell from the bone and was cooked to perfection, with a side of seasonal vegetables – carrots and broccoli – accompanying the dish.

It really was a monster, and almost too much, but I still managed to put it away somewhere.

My guest had opted for the slow-roasted lamb shank with minted peas (£13.95).

The presentation of both dishes was superb and, but for a fur shawl and Viking helmet, this felt like a trip back in time to when simple British food was hot, sumptuous and ready to be devoured.

We probably didn't need a dessert, but the temptation of a classic cheeseboard (£4.50) to finish off the evening was too much to resist. A number of sweet and spicy cheeses was accompanied by biscuits, butter and a strong chop of mature cheddar.

All simple stuff, done very, very well, and for the very reasonable total bill of £50.

FARMERS' MARKETS

HEADCORN: Headcorn farmers' market has now entered its fourth year and opens every second Saturday from 9.30am-12.30pm in the village hall. It aims to provide good-quality, local produce and locally-made goods.

BRIDGE: The market held at The Red Lion on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month aims to give shoppers the opportunity to buy high-quality, nutritious, fresh local food and drink that contributes to their well-being, protects the environment and respects animal welfare.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS: A farmers' market is set in Tunbridge Wells's historical centre of The Pantiles. It revives the tradition of an open-air market held here a few centuries ago; it runs on the first and third Saturdays between the hours of 9am-2pm.

GRAVESEND: The market in Gravesend high street is open between 10am and 2pm on the second Friday of each month. It started in October 2007 on a trial basis and is supported by Gravesham Borough Council.

ELHAM: Elham farmers' market is held on the second and fourth Sundays of the month in the courtyard of the Rose & Crown pub from 10am to midday. It offers a selection of locally-produced fruit and vegetables, eggs, cheese, fresh meat, game, bread, cakes and pies, honey, jams and wine.

HYTHE: This market was established in March 2004 and is now located in the Methodist church hall between Chapel Street and Prospect Road, coming to the coastal town on the second and fourth Saturdays every month, from 10am to noon.

Christmas in THANET

THIS year, why not really enter the Christmas spirit and support your local community by heading down to one of the many events being held across Thanet?

To start the festive season there will be a special exhibition at the Old Town's Margate Gallery. The Spirit Of Christmas will feature local and national artists such as Dawn Cole, Neal Morley and Mike Bell. A selection of original prints, paintings, jewellery, textiles and cards will be on show from Thursday, December 1, until Christmas Eve. Phone 01843 292779 for more information.

Margate's Christmas lights switch-on at Marine Terrace is on Thursday, December 1, between 5pm and 6pm. There will be carols led by The Salvation Army, with songs performed by the Theatre Royal Margate.

On Saturday, December 3, you can celebrate the brand-new Christmas lights in Ramsgate with a day of activities and a Christmas fair in Charlotte and Albert Courts, between Harbour Street and York Street.

Events include Victorian costume characters, the Academy FM Roadshow and Christmas petanque. Youngsters can visit Father Christmas in his grotto between 11am and 4pm.

The Christmas lights switch-on at Westgate falls on Sunday, December 4. There will be funfair rides and some 30 traditional stalls and refreshments including burgers, Italian coffee and Christmas gift ideas.

There is a lantern parade and Father Christmas will be at his grotto from 1pm, with the lights switched on at 4pm by Luke Lucas, who was on this year's The X Factor.

Escape into a winter wonderland at Tudor House in Margate this year on Sundays December 4, 11 and 18, from midday to 4pm.

The house will be decorated with seasonal evergreens, festive fruits and herbs and spices, while the parlour will be laid out with a Feast For A Farmer.

A crafting sheet will give you some ideas to create your own Tudor Christmas. Phone 01843 577577 for more information.

Hansel And Gretel will play at Theatre Royal Margate from Thursday, December 8, until Saturday, December 31. Ticket prices range from £10-£16; family tickets are available. Phone the box office on 0845 130 1786.

Christmas in HERNE BAY

In the bleak midwinter, head down to Herne Bay to enjoy some festive treats and plenty of yuletide fun.

But if you feel the fresh winds on the bay's glorious coastline will be too much for you to brave, or the traditional fish restaurants and warm local ales don't jingle your bells, there is a number of other events on offer this year.

The Kings Hall will be hosting a Christmas craft and gift fair for those last-minute party favours and decorations. There will be a selection of the finest handmade crafts the county has to offer as well as items that allow you to make your traditional festive gifts.

Take ideas and inspiration for your table centre-pieces and tree decorations from the fair, which will be open from 10am to 6pm on Saturday and Sunday, November 26-27.

If you are looking for a show to keep the children entertained, head to see the magical tale of Aladdin at the Herne Bay Little Theatre.

The show, written by David Manners, will run from Thursday, December 1, until Saturday, December 10, with shows starting at 7.30pm and matinees on Saturdays.

Christmas in WHITSTABLE

IT IS that special time of year when everyone is rushing around buying gifts just in time for Christmas. Well, this year there is plenty going on in Whitstable to take your mind off of the shopping madness and get down to some traditional festive events.

First up is a show to warm your cockles with More Music, Murder And Mayhem at the Playhouse Theatre. From Thursday to Saturday, December 1-3, the Lindley Players offer a unique double bill. This pre-Christmas show offers both the traditionally popular Sing Out and the long-awaited Murder At The Argh.... by Glyn Maflin.

A variety of Christmas songs including carols, pop favourites and others will be performed before the local group gets down to the murderous, emotional roller-coaster featuring beautiful women and Johnny Depp look-alikes. Tickets start at £7.50 and are available from the box office on 01227 272042.

The Horsebridge Arts Centre Christmas Quiz is up on Saturday December 3. Put a team together from friends, family or work colleagues, think of a suitably witty name and get in the seasonal spirit with great prizes to win and a Christmas raffle. It costs £5 per person for teams of up to eight. This includes nibbles, but bring your own drinks.

This year's Tankerton Christmas Market will take place at Whitstable Castle and Gardens on Sunday, December 4, from 11am, officially opened by the Lord Mayor of Canterbury, Ian Thomas.

There will be craft, charity and trade stalls inside the castle, as well as a static display by Many Hoots Owl Rescue Centre, a number of children's fairground rides and face-painting by Fantastic Faces. There will also be plenty of good seasonal food and mulled wine available.

On Saturday, December 17, the Whitstable Choral Society Christmas Concert takes place at St Alphege Church.

Conductor David Flood will invite guests to sing carols with the choir. Children in the audience will be invited to perform Away In A Manger under David's direction. Afterwards, every child will receive a small reward for their contribution. Tickets are available from Gatefield Sounds in the high street, or by email at tickets@whitstablechoral.org.uk.

Advance planning can

EVERY year the range of Christmas presents that throng the shelves of stores gets larger and larger.

And even after so many years, people still find it difficult to find the perfect Christmas gifts for the special people in their lives.

After all, everyone wants to make sure their particular gift is appreciated and cherished long after the day itself.

But it doesn't have to be so hard. One just has to anticipate the coming of Christmas and write down good ideas as they occur.

For instance, if your dad is upset that his fishing rod broke during summer he might forget about it after a while, but why not write it down and remember to buy him a replacement when Christmas comes?

Likewise, Mum might have complained that her dresses were out of fashion and she had nothing to wear. So a little foresight and a glance at what's on offer every so often can mean the dress is already bought and wrapped ready to put under the tree.

A little forward planning like this also shows you truly care about what you are buying and know what your loved ones need and really want.

They may have forgotten their initial desire for something new, but they'll remember when they ease present dilemma

unwrap their gift and see what they've got.

Another good tip when looking for Christmas gifts is to think of alternatives to the more common presents.

Here are a few alternative gift ideas:

- When buying for children, make sure that if anything needs batteries they are part of the present. It can be frustrating for youngsters having a bright, shiny, new toy that they cannot do anything with as it won't work. No one wants to trek on Christmas morning looking for an open garage so they can buy some triple-As!
- For many children the thrill of unwrapping a present is as great as playing with what they've been given. So a number of smaller gifts is probably better than one large one – unless it is something the child has long cherished.
- Surprise is a major thing when it comes to successful gift-buying. If someone has started a new hobby or interest, any present that reflects that is sure to be appreciated.
- The ritual of opening presents together in a beautifully decorated room with the tree as the room's centrepiece is one that appeals to everyone. So make sure the gifts you buy make the occasion even more special.

Everywhere and nowhere Punk party

The East Quay, Whitstable
December 2-3
www.wegotickets.com
Tickets priced from £15

THERE will be two classic punk bands on one bill as the Anti-Nowhere League, fresh back from their UK tour with Motörhead, and The Members head to Whitstable. Lead singer Animal formed the Anti-Nowhere League, below, in 1980 and promptly got arrested at their very first gig. The history of the League is littered with brushes with the law, rock'n'roll misbehaviour and very loud music. Their debut album We Are... The League saw all copies seized by the Obscene Publications Squad and they were banned from TV.

The Stig back in the Hatch Speed date

www.brandshatch.co.uk

BRANDS Hatch has joined forces with original Stig Perry McCarthy for a one-off opportunity at its Christmas Grand Prix Ball on Friday, December 23.

The former F1 driver, who has experienced his fair share of highs and lows in motorsport, will welcome guests on arrival before sharing amusing anecdotes about his career after dinner. McCarthy, who was the first man behind the mysterious character on BBC's Top Gear, is known not just for his speed on the track but for his sense of humour and wit off of it. And after an explosive reveal-all book, he has a few stories to tell. Places for the Christmas Grand Prix Ball are available for £55 plus VAT per head.

BUTTONS is one of the best sports elves at the North Pole. But when Santa hosts the Arctic Olympics, Buttons is convinced he will come last in every race – he's lost his lucky scarf and suddenly everything is going wrong. Presented by the team behind last year's popular Red Nose Rocket, this year's fun-filled fest of thrills and spills for children aged three to eight will be sure to start the season's celebrations. This Trinity production hosts colourful characters and key stage learning on a festive journey this Christmas. Tickets cost £7.50, but schools tickets and family tickets are available.

The scary lure of stardust Comedy hit

The Playhouse, Erith
November 28-December 3
01322 350345
www.playhouse.org.uk

THE award-winning comedy Stones In His Pockets opens at Erith Playhouse for a week-long stint on Monday. In the show, Hollywood invades a small Irish town and the uproar is seen through the eyes of two of the film's extras, Charlie and Jake. The dream-factory bandwagon blazes a trail of disruption which changes the villagers' lives forever. At first, the locals are happy to rub shoulders with the glitterati, enjoying the fun of being in the production and the 40 pounds a day that comes with it. However, the stardust turns to sawdust after tragedy strikes. Performances run from Monday to Saturday at 8pm. Tickets, priced at £7.75, are available from the box office.

The Hutch's new winter menu brings comfort to taste buds

ONE year on from its grand opening and The Hutch restaurant in Canterbury has established itself as one of the top eateries in the city.

The Hutch brings a new style to the already eclectic range in the area with a meat-free menu.

Recognised amongst the county's popular specialist restaurants, The Hutch has maintained a position in Canterbury's top 20 restaurants according to visitor website TripAdvisor. From a standing start this is something the team is very proud of and is thanks in no small part to the determination to deliver first-class food and service.

Local produce is used whenever possible and fresh produce like beers, ciders, apple juices and cheeses come from within a 30-mile radius. It also stocks a range of vegetarian and vegan wine, with local wines well represented.

The menu is changed to keep dishes seasonal with a daily special that reflects what is being harvested locally.

The most popular dish in the summer was marinated and sautéed seasonal vegetables, which were served in a puff-pastry base with new potatoes and a pea puree.

But as autumn drew on, this was replaced by chilli potato cake served with roasted Chanteney carrots and ribbons of courgettes.

On the new winter menu, themed 'comfort food' will feature such delights as vegetarian haggis Wellington with mustard seed-and-sage mash with braised sweetheart cabbage. There are vegan options available, as well as gluten-free dishes.

Situated on The King's Mile, The Hutch opens daily from 6pm for dinner and lunchtime on Sundays.

Festive port of call down at The Waterfront

THE Beachbrow Hotel in Deal is a small, family-run business with helpful, welcoming and friendly staff.

The in-house Waterfront Restaurant and Bar has beautiful sea views over the English Channel, perfect for a lunchtime snack or an evening meal.

The team is proud of its Kentish and locally-sourced produce including Romney Marsh lamb, Alkham Valley beef, free-range chicken, duck and pork, with local vegetables to suit all palates and appetites.

The aim is to provide customers with a dining experience that they will look forward to repeating time and time again.

The proprietors, husband and wife Ken and Lynn, have run the 14-room hotel and restaurant for the past nine years with the help of family and friends.

And as we head into the festive season, The Waterfront has launched its new winter menu.

All food is prepared by resident chef Michelle Spain, and the team of staff is dedicated to making sure your visit to The Waterfront is a pleasant experience. With historic Deal's nautical links, this is an ideal port of call for any visitor to the east Kent coast.

Sunday roasts are second to none and pre-Christmas parties are already rolling in, so book in advance to avoid being disappointed.

Bookings are also already being taken for Christmas Day, with a selection of traditional dishes available (without the hassle of clearing up afterwards) for just £55 per person.

See the website for the calendar of events.

LAND AND PROPERTY AUCTIONEERS

Local Knowledge - National Coverage

Could this be the perfect plot for you?

HILLREED Homes is opening its new view home this weekend at Springhead Place, Kemsing, near Sevenoaks.

Already 40 per cent of the homes have sold off-plan and Springhead Place has just three houses remaining.

The view home, plot one, comes with carpets and curtains and occupies a position at the entrance to this private development.

Plot four is a four-bedroom detached house of 1,840 sq ft in the same style as the show home. Plot five is a detached five-bedroom house of 1,911 sq ft. Both have gardens backing on to agricultural land.

All three homes are on the market for £640,000.

For those having difficulty selling their current property, part-exchange is available, subject to usual terms and conditions. There are also discounts on plots four and five of £15,000 for a three-week exchange; £10,000 for a four-week exchange; and if it takes five weeks to exchange there is still a discount of £5,000.

Rural retreat has all the mod cons

ENCHANTING: Romney Marsh

AFTER another grey day in the office and a lousy commute, you may be dreaming of escaping from it all, but is it possible to live in the sticks and still maintain the reality of work, schools, shops and a social life?

The answer could be 'yes' if you head for Romney Marsh, a sparsely populated and beautiful wetland area in south Kent.

The Marsh is renowned for its picturesque walks and cycle rides, abundant birdlife and historic churches.

Covering some 100 square metres, stretching from a few miles to the south of Ashford towards the coast, east towards Hythe and west to the Kent/East Sussex border, the landscape encompasses coastal sand dunes, shingle banks and some of the most peaceful and traffic-free areas in the South East. A 37-minute train ride from Ashford to London St Pancras has put the area within reach of commuters.

Independent estate agency

Hobbs Parker has seen an increase in enquiries for Romney Marsh and has just completed the sale of a sizeable Georgian-style house set in five acres with a guide of £975,000.

It has several other unusual and historically-interesting properties for sale in the area, such as Grade II-listed Brattle House (£695,000) in Brookland, one of the most charming Romney Marsh villages.

It is an enchanting four-bedroom house with beams and inglenook fireplaces, set within its own 1.7 acres.

Alternatively, Gun House at New Romney is a handsome Georgian house with six bedrooms, priced at £650,000.

Alex Davies, head of Hobbs Parker Country Houses, said: "People are drawn to the romance and seeming remoteness of the place, but alongside all the extraordinary history there are some exceptionally attractive period properties."

"It's an appealing package – not only do you have the proximity of the coast and being surrounded by a vast landscape, but you can tap into a strong village life and still be less than an hour from London."

Alongside Brookland and New Romney, other popular communities include Fairfield, Appledore and Ivychurch.

Special homes on the market:

■ Moat Farm, Ivychurch – £795,000: Moated, Grade II-listed farmhouse with five bedrooms, two receptions and 3.5 acres of land.

■ Brattle House, Brookland – £695,000: Grade II-listed farmhouse with four bedrooms, three receptions and 1.7 acres.

■ Gun House, New Romney – £650,000: Handsome Georgian village house with six bedrooms.

EVOLVING: The original Honda Civic, launched in 1972, has seen many changes up to this present-day version

Latest Civic spaceship now hitting warp nine

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

HONDA'S ninth generation Civic arrives in January – a far more grown-up car than the supermini-size 1972 original.

The Civic has long since been enlarged to compete in the family hatchback sector and the previous car's spaceship looks – inside and outside – set a pattern carried over into the latest car.

But the new car's style is more a consolidation of the starship-style rather than the quantum leap that saw the generation eight model shine against its staid predecessor.

This restraint should please far more would-be customers, likely to be split 50-50 between company car/fleet users and private buyers.

In the current economic climate, when many people want to buy British, there is also mileage for Honda in the fact that – like its CR-V SUV and Jazz supermini – the Civic is made at its Swindon UK plant.

Honda says its aims in creating the latest Civic were:

- stand-out looks with class-leading space
- unparalleled reliability – the Japanese marque always scores highly in customer satisfaction polls

Best rival:
VW Golf

- high-quality fit and finish
- quiet, clean, economical engines delivering low CO2 and running costs.

Prices start at £16,495 and engine options at launch are 1.4 or 1.8 petrol, or 2.2 diesel, with a fuel-saving stop/go system on manual versions.

A five-inch full colour dashboard screen shows mpg, stop/go status, climate and audio settings. There is also an ECON mode to save fuel as seen on the Jazz Hybrid and Insight. The range-topper for now will be the £26,595 diesel 2.2 i-TEC EX GT, but Honda is being cagey about whether a Type-R performance flagship will follow.

Like many makers it has to weight its environmental responsibilities against the dubious hype from a performance-orientated halo car, which could cancel out PR benefits Honda has as a premier manufacturers of hybrids, which include the lively yet green CR-X petrol-electric coupé.

Standard kit on entry level Civic SE models includes that colour dashboard screen as well as 16-inch alloys, automatic air con and USB connectivity for MP3 players.

At the other end of the range in EX GT trim, buyers get keyless entry/ignition, front and rear parking sensors, bi-xenon headlights and lumbar support, panoramic glass roof, 17-inch alloys, privacy glass and auto-dimming rear view mirror.

Stylish Veloster opens new door to sports sector

HYUNDAI'S earlier attempts at sporting cars have scored largely on price rather than style and ability.

However, the final incarnation of the long-running Coupé model – axed two years ago – showed the Korean marque had made huge strides in a sector where buyers are notoriously hard to please.

Hyundai is about to dive in again, and with an innovative spin; the new Veloster (from £17,995-£21,745) arriving early next year is a crisply-styled fastback with a single rear passenger door, allowing easy access to the back seats. Following a trend, the handle for this extra door is concealed in the rear window frame.

However, the real selling point is that, unlike the controversial Mini Clubman, the Veloster has its single rear door on the pavement side – far more desirable from a safety point of view, particularly for parents with small children.

Add the liftback tail and classy looks and the Veloster looks set to become a big seller and a marketing coup for Hyundai.

Power comes from a 138bhp 1.6-litre petrol with six-speed manual gearbox, or Hyundai's first dual-clutch auto/manual transmission (DCT), and it should average nearly 50mpg. Helped by a stop/start economy system, it emits 137g/km of CO2, which is modest for a sporting car and attracts road tax of £115/year.

The high level of kit is what you would expect from Hyundai and includes a seven-inch TFT touch screen media centre, Bluetooth connectivity and reversing sensors and 17-inch alloys. But customers will also be able to customise the car with bigger wheels, colour inserts, panoramic sunroof or red leather interior.

On a more practical note though, the car comes with Hyundai's usual five-year/unlimited mileage warranty and roadside assistance package.

SX4 has year-round appeal

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

SPURRED on by recent wintry snowfalls, we booked a test drive in late 2010 for the cheapest proper 4x4 on the market – the Suzuki Jimny.

Right on cue, it snowed just as the car arrived and proved just how good the little off-roader was at coping with difficult conditions though, please note, 4x4 won't save you if you are daft enough to get yourself into a four-wheel skid.

So, having put the Jimny through its paces properly, we thought we might tempt fate again by booking the slightly bigger Suzuki SX4 in full 4x4 format – most are sold as front-wheel drive only.

This time though, the snow stayed away in a way that the three-door Jimny never could: as a practical five-door everyday car.

No matter though, as the SX4 proved itself in a way that the three-door Jimny never could: as a practical five-door everyday car.

The Jimny is a proper off-roader and, when you aren't battling mud or snow, you suffer a cramped cabin and basic motoring.

The SX4, on the other hand, is really a small SUV or soft-roader that will cope with most awkward situations other than yomping across a muddy field or tackling a crumbling incline, and it is unique on the UK market.

The two cars coming remotely close are the Subaru Impreza – really a family hatchback with all-wheel drive – and the Daihatsu Terios, currently unavailable since Daihatsu pulled out of the UK due to the strength of the Japanese Yen.

The basic SX4 costs from £11,995, but the 4x4 format starts at £14,900 – quite a bit more than the little Jimny (from £10,995), but worth it for that all-year round flexibility.

However, if you want the best pulling power you will have to find £16,700 for the flagship

LITTLE GEM:

Suzuki's SX4 is the slightly bigger cousin of the Jimny but offers the practicality of a five-door family car with the capability of four-wheel drive, allowing it to cope with the most awkward of driving conditions

2.0-litre diesel version tested here, though it will reward you with the best economy of the line-up, bettering even the two-wheel drive SX4 versions.

The 4x4 transmission actually gives you a two-wheel drive economy setting anyway, though most owners will leave it in 4x4 Auto mode, which is the default for most other soft-roaders anyway – this means two-wheel drive in most situations until sensors sense a loss of traction and apply extra drive to one or both rear wheels.

Finally, there is a lockable 4x4 mode for when you really do need that extra grip in mud, snow and ice.

Most of the time though, the SX4 functions well as a capacious supermini/family hatchback. It sits slightly higher than average and that gives better ground clearance, a good view out and ease of access to a spacious cabin, with good width across the back seat for three and ample leg and headroom.

If we are nit-picking then the high lip of a high-mounted boot could put some off, but there is plenty of load space with rear seats folded flat or not.

Where the car endears though is its excellent road manners: good grip – as you would expect – little body roll, and responsive steering.

If Suzuki could just add a model with more power and chassis savvy, we could have that holy grail – a true GTI off-roader.

Interior trimming is robust rather than elegant – you never get the impression anything will break, but it isn't particularly stylish or touchy-feely.

The dashboard is logically arranged but, again, workman-like rather than flashy, while the seats are comfy but not plush.

However, this is a rugged jack of all trades and, if you live out in the sticks, the SX4 really is a car for all seasons that won't break itself or the bank.

New-look Avensis packs in latest on-board technology

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

TOYOTA'S company car star, the Avensis, has had a major midlife upgrade and gained many new features, but prices have been pegged or even cut.

The new-look range of saloons and estates, built at the marque's ultra-modern and number one European plant in Burnaston, Derbyshire, starts at £18,450 and arrives in showrooms next month.

By a long way the most stylish of the three Avensis generations built at Burnaston so far, the car has received minor cosmetic changes and Toyota also claims to have made the spacious cabin quieter and more comfortable, though it was no slouch in that department before.

With company car user choosers making up the bulk of sales though, one of the key features being noted are revisions to the top-selling 2.0-litre D-4D diesel engine to deliver lower emissions and better fuel economy – CO2 levels are now down to 119g/km, which translates into zero road tax in year one and £30 a year thereafter – almost absurdly low for a family-size car.

The other major draw for the company user is that Toyota has chosen this revised Avensis to launch its new Touch and Go Plus multimedia, navigation and information system including email integration – it comes as standard on flagship T Spirit models.

Apart from sat nav and iPod/MP3 and Bluetooth connectivity, the system's 6.1-inch touchscreen also contains the rear-view camera and connectivity to Google Local Search, and offers many downloadable applications.

Toyota believes the system has huge appeal to hard-working motorway-driving executives who need traffic information, email and texting, plus easy control of such features via voice recognition – particularly useful for inputting sat nav addresses while on the move.

The slightly less spec'd up Touch and Go appears as standard on all lesser models apart from the T2 entry trim.

More Soul for Korean crossover

KIA'S innovative and successful urban crossover, the Soul, has been refreshed for the 2012 model, yet remains great value from £12,495.

The makeover includes revised powertrains and, notably, six-speed gearboxes as standard to boost performance while cutting fuel consumption, emissions and costs.

The Soul's distinctive and original styling has been sharpened by changes to the grilles, lights, front bodywork and wheels. A new bumper with a wider, lower air intake changes the proportions of the car and gives it a wider stance.

Following a recent trend across its range, the Korean marque has also added more visual quality to the fixtures and fittings to match the durability that was already there.

All versions have even more equipment than before, but the range has been streamlined to Soul 1 and Soul 2, plus the Hunter and Quantum 'Soul Originals' – the latest in a rolling programme of special versions with unique styling and trim.

Kia sees the five-door car as an urban crossover – small enough to be handy in the city, but big and flexible inside for families. With its customisable looks, it is also a more practical approach to the individualism of the Mini and Fiat 500.

The Soul was launched in 2008, and immediately impressed with its good handling, but now also gets the power that it deserves in the form of a new direct-injection (GDI) petrol unit developing 138bhp – up 14bhp on the previous 1.6-litre – and a modified version of the existing diesel developing 126bhp. The latter is also available with a six-speed auto.

LARGE STOCK OF NEW AND USED WINTER TYRES

What are winter tyres?

Winter tyres are specially designed to grip in the ice and snow. They're perfect for the depths of a British winter, European skiing trips, or countries where it's law to use them.

Narrower than normal road tyres, winter tyres can be fitted on to a new or used set of steel or alloy wheels. You fit the winter wheels and tyres to your vehicle in the winter and change back to your normal wheels in the summer.

Why should I fit winter tyres?

You don't have to use winter tyres by law in the UK, but you do in certain European countries. For icy and snowy conditions winter tyres are far safer - they give far more grip than the wider rubber your vehicle comes with.

Winter tyres will keep you moving when your normal tyres will be skidding and sliding. Kerbing your wheels will be a thing of the past.

Will they fit my vehicle?

Yes. We stock winter tyre and wheel sets for all makes of Family Hatch - Saloon - Sports Car - MPV 4x4 & Commercial. We are highly knowledgeable on recommended downsizing to any vehicle.

All of our packages follow manufactures recommendations and databases used world wide by tyre and wheel manufactures and suppliers
